

Progressives to Gird for 'Fight Of Their Lives'

'Birthday' Party to be Held at Wisconsin Rapids May 19

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau. Madison—Progressive headquarters here today announced the selection of Wisconsin Rapids as the place for the party's sixth birthday party on May 19. The announcement was made by J. K. Kyle, chairman of the Progressive state central committee.

Senator Robert M. LaFollette, titular head of the Progressive forces in Wisconsin, and other party leaders will be present to keynote the Progressive campaign to recapture from the Republicans the state government which the LaFollette followers surrendered after a landslide defeat of almost 200,000 votes in 1938.

Kyle said that the program for the rally is now being prepared and will be announced soon.

"The May 19 birthday party celebration will not be in the form of a convention," he pointed out, "and admission will be open to all Progressives."

Oppose Closed Primary

"County and local organizations will not elect delegates but will attend in a body," said Kyle as he emphasized that Progressives remain opposed to the traditional political conventions at which candidates for office are customarily nominated. The LaFollette Progressives, who fathered the open primary principle in Wisconsin many years ago, insist that they will remain faithful to it this year.

Sounding an optimistic note, Kyle said that reports reaching the party's office here show that the "rank and file of the Progressive party are eager to roll up their sleeves and enlist for the fight of their lives in the 1940 campaign."

Kyle recalled that the Progressive party as it is now constituted dates back to May 19, 1934, at Fond du Lac, when a gathering of LaFollette followers assembled to discuss severance from the Republican parent body decided that if the move got the endorsement of 50,000 voters, it would be approved.

Signature Obtained

The 50,000 signatures on petitions were obtained in three weeks, and the party went on to win in the 1934 elections in which both Senator Robert M. LaFollette and Governor Phil were elected.

In addition, the party sent members of congress to Washington under its banner. In 1936 Governor Phil got the biggest vote of his career as he was chosen for a third term. Midway in that term, eager to spread the influence of his organization beyond the boundaries of Wisconsin, LaFollette and some of the Madison leaders announced the establishment of the National Progressives of America. Within a year the state party's rule was smashed by a resurgent Republican party and a ticket headed by Julius P. Heil. Since that time the emphasis of Progressive headquarters has been shifted from NPA, as the national wing of the Progressives has been dubbed, to the problem of retrieving losses on the home front.

cial interpretations of law at the instance of those who show no more than a mere possible injury to the public."

The purpose of the Walsh-Healey act authorizing wage orders by the labor department, he said, "was to impose obligations upon those favored with government business and to obviate the possibility that any part of our tremendous national expenditures would go to forces tending to depress wages and purchasing power and offending fair social standards of employment."

The act, Black continued, "does not represent an exercise by congress of regulatory power over private business or employment."

"For more than a year," Black said, "cabinet officers and their subordinates have been enjoined from making the secretary's determination of minimum wages effective. Meanwhile, iron and steel were needed for the army and navy."

"In order that the military program could proceed, the declared policy of the congress was abandoned under judicial compulsion and contracts without a minimum wage stipulation have been awarded for more than $85,000,000 worth of iron and steel products since the injunction was issued."

"Such a possibility places in bold relief those conditions which led congress to proceed in this act upon the belief, to which we have recently alluded, that legislatures are ultimate guardians of the liberties and welfare of the people in quite as great a degree as the courts,"

A justice department brief said a minimum wage of 62 cents an hour was fixed for the seven companies, while they paid from 52 1/2 to 56 1/2 cents.

Companies which brought suit against the labor department order were:

The Lukens Steel company, Coatesville, Pa.; the Alan Wood Steel company, Conshohocken, Pa.; the South Chester Tube company, Chester, Pa.; the Central Iron and Steel company, Harrisburg, Pa.; the Harrisburg Steel Corporation, Harrisburg; the Eastern Rolling Mill company, Colgate, Mr., and the Atlantic Wire company, Brantford, Conn.

The court called today for oral arguments on constitutionality of the 1937 bituminous coal act, designed to stabilize the industry by fixing minimum prices.

Allies Facing Formidable Task in Attempting to Oust Nazis From Southern Norway

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York —(P)—The twenty-first day of battle of Norway finds the Germans occupying the southern (and most important) part of the country strongly and possession being nine points of the law in war as well as in civil life. The Anglo-French allies are faced with a formidable task of ousting them.

The struggle continues to center on possession of the strategic port and rail-head of Trondheim. Control of this great gateway in the broken coast of Norway, and of the railways leading from it, means domination of the whole central and southern portion of the country.

The nazis last week capitalized the great advantage they obtained by their surprise invasion and strengthened their hold on the south considerably. In some instances this was at the expense of the allies in land engagements involving part of the maneuvering for position in preparation for the big showdown.

No Major Clash

There was no major clash, however, and neither side encountered disaster or scored striking victory. By the weekend the allies had pulled up their socks and checked the nazi advances towards Trondheim in most places.

One cardinal point seems to me to have become increasingly clear—that the invasion will stand or fall in accordance with the degree of air control which the Germans are able to maintain.

Thus far the nazis have maintained their air supremacy in Norway. The success of their invasion has been largely the result of this factor.

What we are witnessing now is a concrete demonstration—the first comprehensive test of its kind—of what a powerful and well-handled air navy means to modern warfare. It is important to remember that the nazis had their surface navy rendered virtually impotent in the battles at the beginning of the invasion, and were deprived to a large extent of the use of the sea for communications with Norway.

Act With Speed

Save for the great airforce the contest would have ended there. The nazis made a virtue of their necessity, however, and threw their dependence on the flying force—or maybe they would have done this in any event. Acting with the speed which is one of the outstanding characteristics of the German military operations, they seized all the north-while airports of Norway, thus hamstringing the allies for the moment.

As the result of this advantage the Germans have been able to move thousands of badly-needed reinforcements by air transport, the allies being unable to stop this because of the excessive flying distance from Britain and France. Not only that, but the nazis also have flown equipment and supplies—even artillery—into Norway, and they have harassed the allies in their landing operations.

However, the Anglo-French brotherhood have continued to land forces above and below Trondheim,

Unpledged Delegation For Rhode Island GOP

Providence, R. I. —(P)—Rhode Island Republicans today picked an unpledged delegation-at-large to the GOP national convention after supporters of Governor William H. Vanderbilt, maintaining a tight control over the state convention, crushed an attempt to line up delegates for Thomas E. Dewey.

Leaders of an insurgent group abandoned a planned attempt to push through a delegation pledged to the New York district attorney after losing out in a fight to over-ride the Republican state organization and pick its own permanent convention chairman.

Without a dissenting voice being raised, the convention then elected a four-member delegation-at-large which was selected by the GOP state organization and backed by Governor Vanderbilt.

Rhode Island's two congressional districts will pick two district delegates each at separate conventions later today.

Be A Careful Driver

The Germans this morning were reported to have reached the railroad above Dombas with a column. A battle appeared developing. A nazi success here would be a hard blow for the allies as it would prevent a union of the two sections of the expeditionary force.

If you will glance at your maps you will get an interesting and not at all complicated picture of the operations. You will see that the railway running south from Trondheim divides about 40 miles below the port and continues its course in two tortuous lines which pass through more or less parallel valleys lying between the snow-capped ranges. It is up these two grim gash-like that the nazi columns are struggling towards Trondheim.

Thus it is apparent that the conflict has developed into a hot race between the combatants to see which will reach Trondheim first. And this is likely to be one of the great military races of history, for possession of Norway likely depends on it in major degree.

Stassen Begins Conferences on Keynote Speech

Another Week of Delegate-Picking Gets Under Way

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER

Washington —(P)—Republican campaign tactics began crystallizing today with the arrival of Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota for conferences on his keynote speech to the party's national convention June 24.

The 33-year-old Stassen sought advice from party leaders in congress on expressions concerning foreign affairs, labor, agriculture and other campaign issues.

Stassen came here as another week of convention delegate-picking got under way. Republicans will select 94 delegates this week to send their total to 528, or more than half the 1,000 total. Democrats will pick only 34 to raise their number to 392, a little more than a third of their 1,094-total.

Chief interest is centered on the Massachusetts presidential primary tomorrow, when 34 delegates each will be elected by the two parties. On the Republican side there is an unpledged delegate slate headed by Governor Saltonstall, Senator Lodge and House Leader Martin. Another slate, filed by William H. Mcmasters, pension adducator, is pledged to Thomas E. Dewey without the latter's consent.

McMasters has charged the state Republican committee with bringing Dr. Francis E. Townsend, sponsor of the Townsend old age pension plan, into the state in an effort to "stop" Dewey.

Townsend declared that his group frowned on a statement attributed to Dewey favoring the social security act.

In the Democratic Massachusetts primary, victory is forecast for a slate pledged to Postmaster General Farley but said by state leaders to be ready to support President Roosevelt if the latter runs.

Endorse LaFollette For Vice President

Salem, Ore. —(P)—The Oregon Commonwealth federation endorsed Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin for vice president over Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana yesterday.

The federation, in state-wide convention, endorsed President Roosevelt for a third term.

Beverage Division Laboratory Watchdog of Tavern Business

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau. Madison—The first project of its kind in any state government in the country has been instituted by Chief John W. Roach of the state beverage tax division to regulate the state liquor trade more effectively and to increase efficiency in the collection of state revenues from the industry.

A fully equipped chemistry unit has been installed in the division's headquarters here in which samples of liquor taken from establishments about which complaints are received are tested and compared with the formulas submitted by manufacturers of various brands and varieties of alcoholic drinks.

Principal objective is the detection of "refilling," according to Roach, a practice through which the state may lose considerable amounts of tax revenue.

State agents have won numerous convictions of tavernkeepers accused of using bottles designed to hold high quality, tax paid liquor from which to serve cheap, low quality and tax-free liquor.

Other instances have been revealed where tavern proprietors adulterate good whisky with cheaper brands, or refill entirely the higher priced whisky containers with a low quality product. Adulteration and misrepresentation are punished by heavy fines in the statutes.

Roach said that he has already obtained the formulas for more than 25,000 brands of hard liquor from the manufacturers. The division's files contain formulas from manufacturers throughout the world, he said, and are constantly being built up.

"The chemistry unit has already more than paid for itself in fines for convictions," the division chief explained. Fines for liquor law violations revert to the state school fund administered by the land department, it was explained.

Milwaukee Man and Sheboygan Woman Named by Committee

Milwaukee —(P)—Edward A. Bacon, of Milwaukee, and Mrs. Harry E. Thomas, of Sheboygan, present committeewoman, are the national committee choices of Wisconsin delegates to the Republican national convention.

The delegation—in which person backing Thomas E. Dewey of New York for the presidential nomination hold all 24 seats—pledged itself Saturday to work "without reservations of any kind" for selection of Dewey by the convention at Philadelphia.

Bacon, who headed the Dewey campaign in Wisconsin prior to the April 2 election, declared that attempts by "certain anti-Dewey individuals . . . to cast doubt on the loyalty of the Dewey-instructed delegation" had been "completely repudiated" at the meeting, which was attended by 20 of the delegates. State Senator Ben Gettelman, of Milwaukee, was elected permanent chairman of the group and George Greely, of Oshkosh, was named secretary.

A. J. O'Melia, Rhinelander attorney, was chosen to make one of the endorsing speeches in behalf of Dewey at Philadelphia.

Gannett Says New Deal Has 'Stranglehold' Upon Nation

Philadelphia —(P)—Frank Gannett, candidate for the Republican nomination for president, drew a parallel today between the tyranny of pre-revolutionary days and "the stranglehold" he said the Roosevelt administration was steadily tightening "on the country."

Speaking to the Republican Luncheon club of Southeastern Pennsylvania in an address broadcast nationally, the Rochester publisher discussed the complaints drawn up against George III by Thomas Jefferson and said:

"The acts described by Jefferson were committed by royalists, Tories and reactionaries."

practically no medical aid or medicine available north of Trondheim. Tragic scenes are enacted nightly in the region when refugees slip down from the mountains into valley communities to poke through the ash-covered homes seeking lost possessions.

Mountain huts, especially in the Namsos district, are so crowded with refugees that they must take turns sleeping indoors.

This is the district where bombing planes have caused the greatest civilian damage in proportion to the population. During the first German bombing of Namsos, the region's largest sawmill was set fire and the entire populace turned out to help extinguish it.

Flee Bomb Raids
They were partly successful until wave after wave of bombers returned, sending the Norwegians running in panic. Some sought refuge in cellars but most fled helter-skelter into the mountains without pausing to take along proper clothing to protect them against cold.

The town's life went to pieces. It was reported no civilians were killed by the bombs, but none of the debris has been searched yet and inhabitants said it would be a marvel if no dead are found.

Mountain peasants now are sharing their meager possessions with the refugees. Highly valued cows, pigs and even horses are being slaughtered for food.

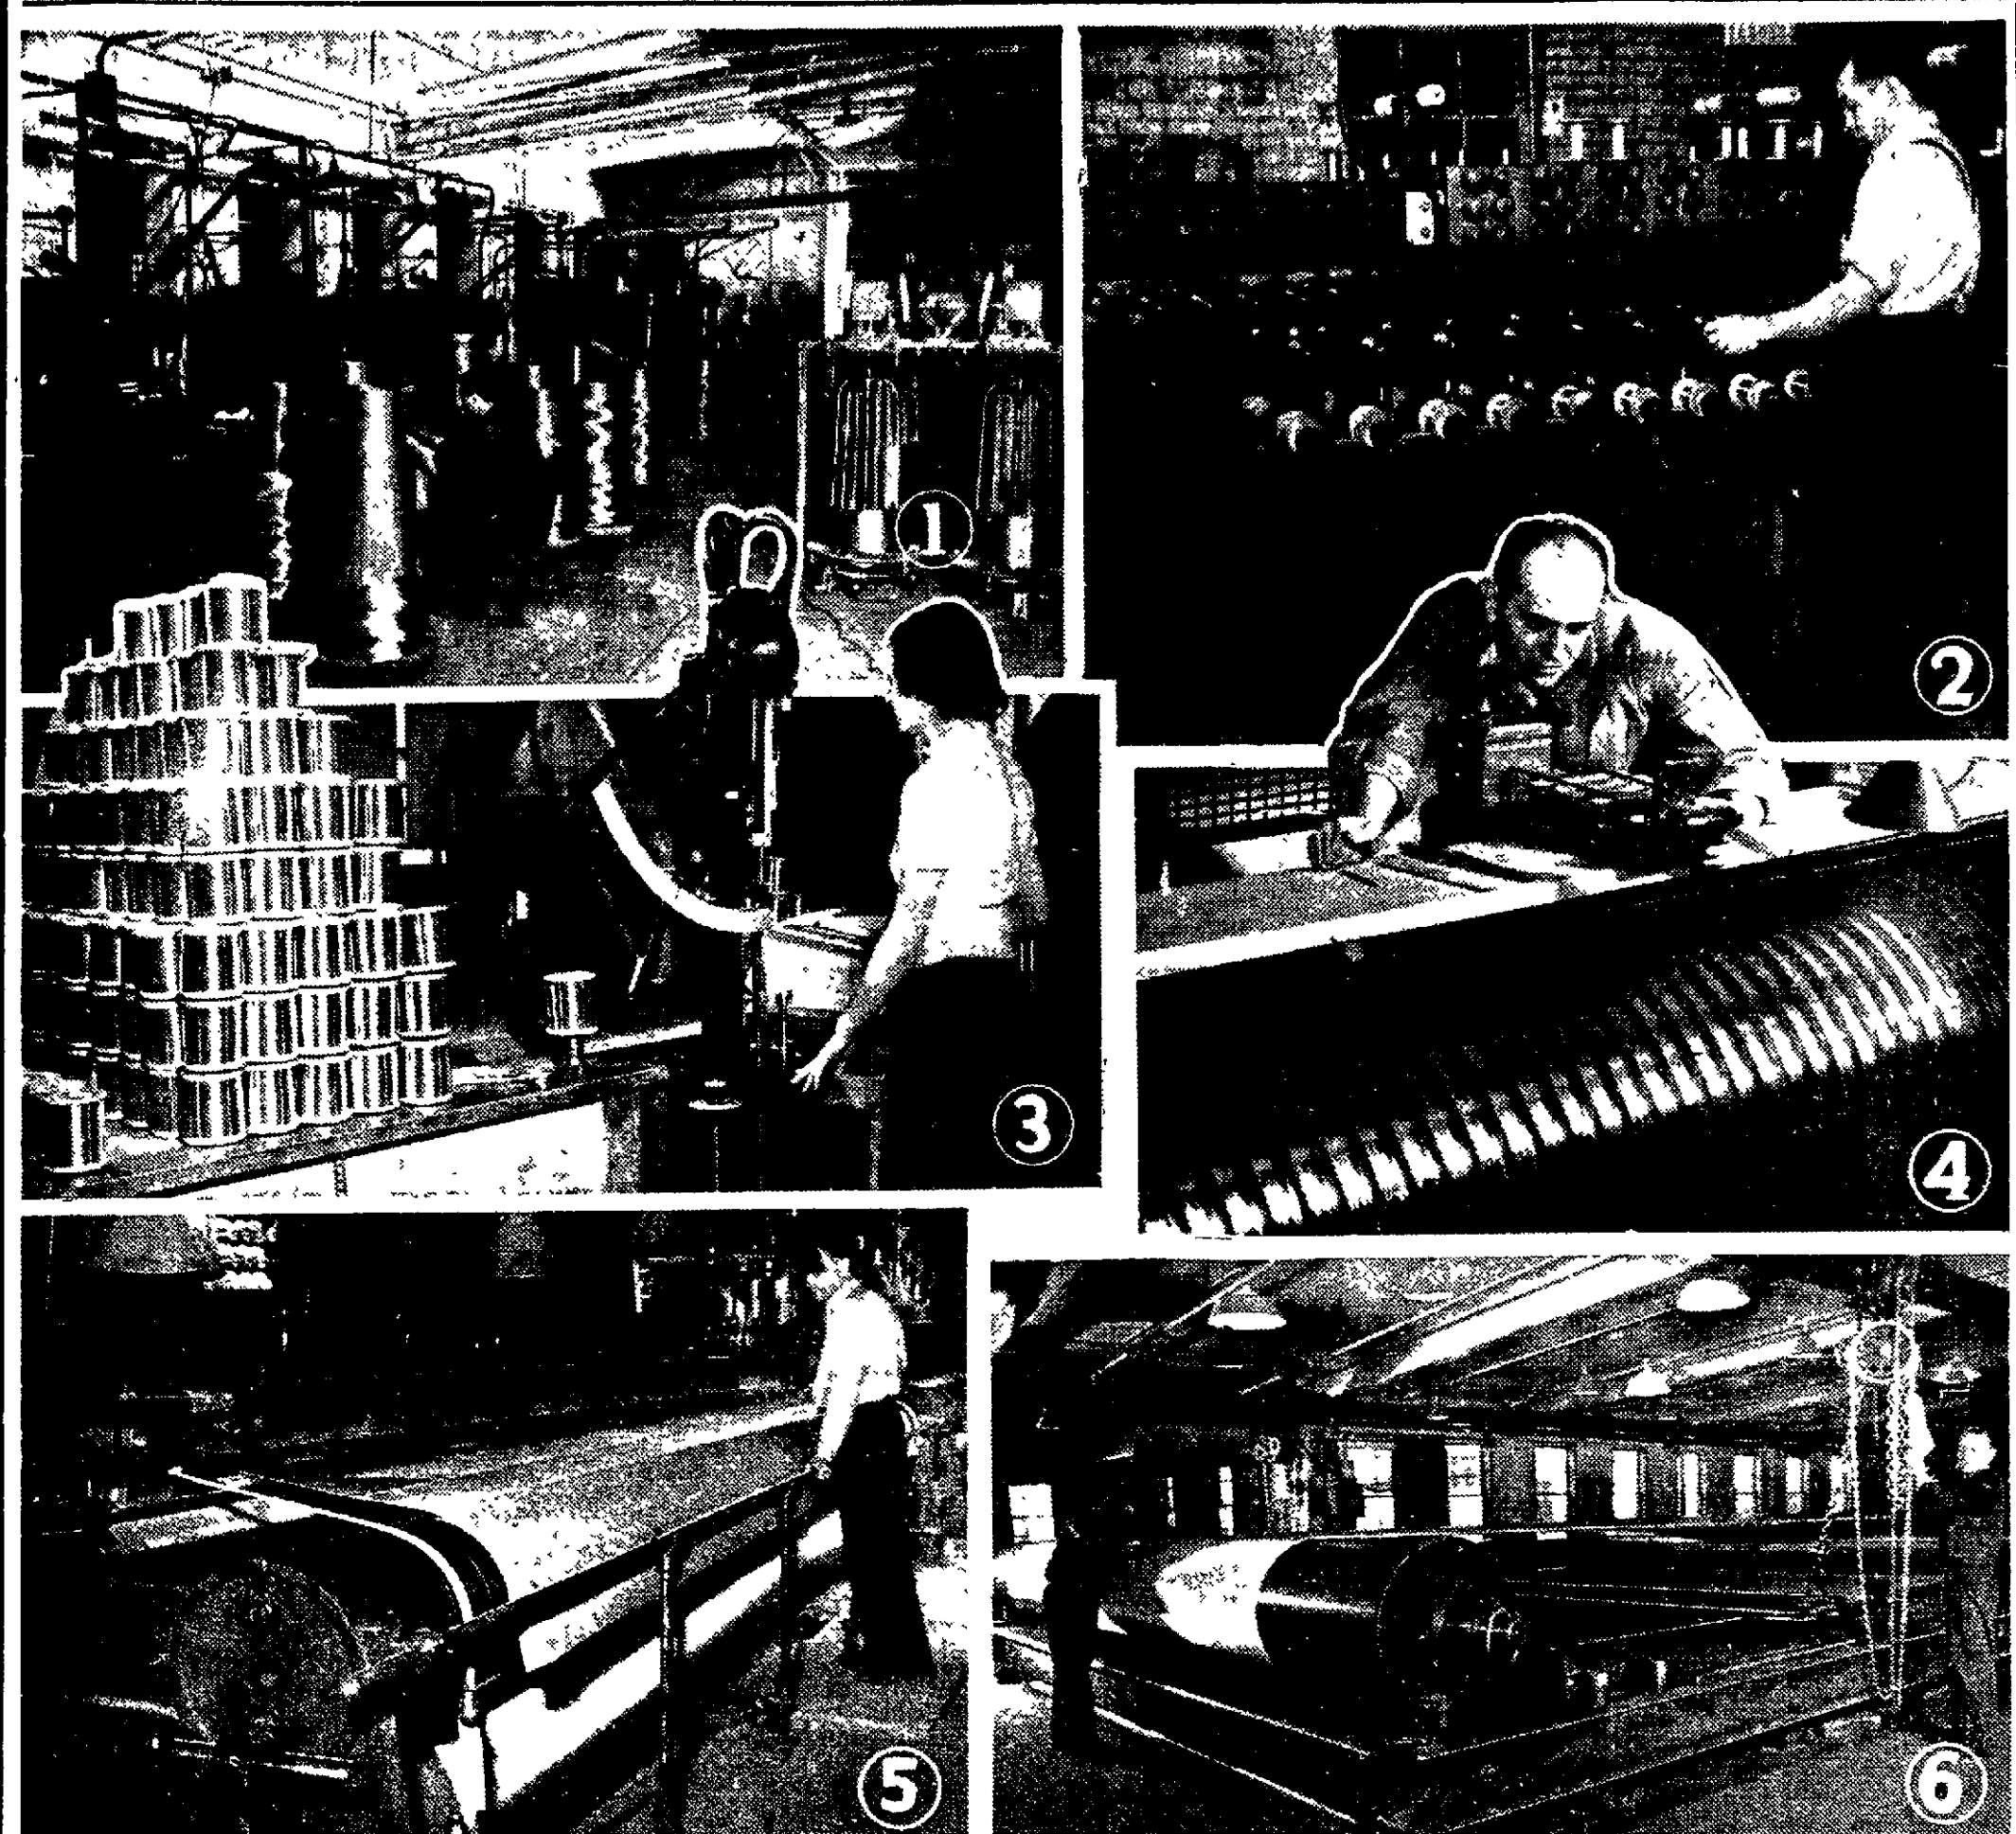

The peasants not only must care for refugees but they must help feed allied troops in the vicinity.

Old Age Pension Load Is Leveling Off in Wisconsin

Department Reports Slacking in Rate of Applications

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—For the first time since the inauguration of the old age pension program, the state public welfare department said today, a slackening of the rate of increase of the number of pension applicants is discernible.

Although normally the rate of applications increases during the winter months, the last winter brought a slackening of the increase, it was said.

"This is our first indication that the old age pension load is becoming more stable. The indications are that barring changes in the law, we may expect an increase in the old age assistance case load, but at a slower rate than previously."

During March, it was reported today, 50,349 aged persons collected $1,121,377 in old age pensions, receiving an average monthly benefit of $22.27.

As in previous months, the average payments in counties in the Appleton area were considerably below the state average.

Here are the number of pension recipients, the total amounts paid, and the average amount of the pension check, in the counties near Appleton during the last month:

County	Number	Amount	Ave.
Brown	623	$11,520	$18.49
Calumet	184	3,486	18.95
Outagamie	858	19,414	21.48

WIRES WOVEN INTO BELTS FOR PAPER MACHINES

A camera tour through the Appleton Wire Works, 600 E. Atlantic street, illustrates major steps in the manufacture of Fourdrinier wires for paper machines, a field in which the Appleton company is a leader.

The steps follow: 1. The wire drawing department where wires are pulled through diamond dies to required size. The process makes the wire brittle and it later must be softened by annealing.

2. The spooling operation, which occurs after the wires have gone through the strand annealer. The wire is merely wound up on spools.

3. The wire on each spool is tested for physical properties such as tensile strength, elongation, and yield point, which is the point at which it will stretch.

4. Winding of the wire on the loom. The number of wires per inch determines the mesh and different diameter wires are used for each mesh.

5. The wire weaver at work over his loom. The shuttle carries the weft wire through the warp wire, the heddle frames moving up and down after each shuttle trip. As many as three million feet of wire will go into a large Fourdrinier wire.

6. After the wire is made endless by brazing, sewing, or soldering, it is placed on the finishing table and inspected and conditioned for running on paper machine.

Appleton Wire Works Builds 75th Loom. Man Hours Double 1929 Figure. Products Expand

BY DON ANDERSON

The Appleton Wire Works was founded in 1895 as the first manufacturer of paper mill wire cloth west of the Ohio river. When operations were started in 1896, the company had two looms.

Today the firm is building its 75th loom and is one of the leaders in its particular division of industry. Today the company has 170 employees and produces a complete line of wire cloth and endless belts known as Fourdrinier wires for the paper industry.

The wire drawer guiding intricate machines, the weaver, standing sharply vigilant over his loom, and the finisher carefully inspecting the product represent one of the highest skilled classes of American workmen. And the big, bronze-hued belts which they spend their days manufacturing are as essential to the paper industry as the linotype to the daily newspaper.

In the face of a market that is actually declining because improvement in the quality of wires and in paper machines have lengthened the life of the Fourdrinier wire, the Appleton firm during 1939 recorded twice as many man hours as in 1929. Consumption of the endless belts is decreasing—despite the installation of new machines by the paper industry—but through the introduction of new products and new applications, the production of the Appleton company is increasing.

"Tailor-Made"

The Fourdrinier wires produced by the Appleton Wire Works are "tailor made" to meet the sizes and specifications of paper machines. In all the company makes about 75 combinations of meshes, weaves, and metals. These endless belts range in width from 52 to 251 inches and in length from 25 to 120 feet.

Some of the largest of the belts turned out by the company have from 2 1/2 to 3 million feet of wire in them. And in making a belt endless, there are as many as 35,000 single soldered connections. The two wire drawing departments in the firm will draw as high as 15 million feet of wire a day.

A high degree of craftsmanship is demanded in the making of Fourdrinier wires. Flaws which might occur during the process will make the belt unsuitable for paper-making and there is practically no value in spoilage.

Most of the endless belts woven at the Appleton Wire Works are made of phosphor bronze and brass wire. The phosphor bronze runs lengthwise in the pattern and the brass wire, crosswise. The wire cloth is made endless by soldering, brazing, or sewing.

The Appleton company buys its wire from eastern firms and must draw it down to required sizes. The plant has two wire drawing departments, one for bronze and one for brass. The wires are pulled through diamond dies at speeds of from 1250 to 3600 feet a minute, depending on the size and alloy.

The drawing process makes the wires brittle and they are softened by annealing. Some of the wire is heated in coils, but most of it goes into strand-annealing furnaces. The strands are passed through individual tubes in these furnaces. The temperature ranges from 1100 to 1400 degrees Fahrenheit.

After leaving the strand annealer the wire is wound up on 5-pound spools.

Careful Tests

The Appleton Wire Works tests each spool for its physical properties. The wire which goes into the endless belts for the paper industry must conform to strict standards set up for tensile strength, elongation, and yield point, the latter being the point at which the wire starts to stretch.

After the testing process, the wire is wound onto the beam of the loom. The number of wires per inch determines the mesh and different diameter wires are used for each mesh.

Enough wires are wound on a loom to weave from 10 to 20 endless belts. The wire is then threaded through the heddles and reed, the loom is adjusted, and weaving begins.

One man operates a loom, but the Appleton Wire Works runs two shifts. The weaving of Fourdrinier wires is based on the same principle as any other weaving. The shuttle carries the weft (crosswise) wire through the warp wire (lengthwise) and the heddle frames move up and down after each trip the shuttle makes, according to the type of weave desired.

After the finished wire has been made endless, it is placed on the finishing table and carefully inspected and conditioned to make certain it is ready for running on a paper machine. The wire is then rolled on three poles and boxed for shipment.

The Appleton Wire Works designs and builds most of its own equipment, much of which is protected by patents. The company also holds patents covering products and methods.

A. J. Taylor is the oldest employee of the company. A weaver, he was

Public Works Board Will Reorganize at First Meeting May 7

An organization meeting of the board of public works will be held Tuesday afternoon, May 7, in city hall. The board will have four new members, E. E. Sager, city clerk, Aldermen Thompson and Brautigam, and Lloyd M. Schindler, engineer.

Alderman Franke will continue on the board as chairman of the street and bridge committee. Last year he was a member in his capacity as chairman of the finance committee.

Sager will replace Carl J. Becker, present clerk, as secretary of the board. The chairman of the public grounds and building committee, as represented by Alderman Brautigam, is a new board member added this year to make the votes impossible.

Schindler will replace Alfred Wickesberg, whom he defeated in the last election. Other members of the board are Mayor Goodland and City Attorney Harry P. Hoefel.

Tree Plantation Is Begun at Institute Of Paper Chemistry

A tree plantation was started last week by the Institute of Paper Chemistry on the property adjoining the main building to the southeast. Four hundred 3-year-old trees were planted under the supervision of Dr. L. H. Isenberger with the assistance of Gilbert Barnes and Gertrude Black.

These trees were in a seed bed for two years and then in a transplant for a year. Eight pulpwood species are equally represented: white and Norway spruce, balsam fir, European larch and Jack, red and white and Scotch pines.

The trees will be used principally in the identification phase of the wood technology course. The planting probably will be extended each year to include other species.

Kaukauna — Training in forestry work to all young men qualified under the NYA program will be given from May 6 to Nov. 1 at the Rhinelander resident center, Elmer Grebe, Outagamie county NYA director, said this morning. Applicants for the program are to see Mr. Grebe at the NYA headquarters at Kaukauna public library.

The Rhinelander school of vocational and adult education has worked out a cooperative arrangement with the U. S. Forestry department, and experts of the department stationed at Rhinelander will help the youths acquire a knowledge of forestry and conservation.

Practice, Study

The first half of each day will be spent on practical work at a Rhinelander nursery, with the other half at the vocational school. Courses offered include shop work, related science, drafting and forestry and conservation. Projects will include work in landscaping, fire prevention and suppression, nursery practice, disease control, botany and soil study.

Each youth earns about $30 a month for work done at Rhinelander, with $10 the approximate living cost. The project is intended to give young men interested in forestry a behind the scenes view of that vocation.

Immediate action is necessary for those interested, Grebe emphasized, as the project opens a week from today.

All-Stars Win at Murphy's Corners

Alger and Powers Share Mound Work for Kaukauna, Allow One Hit

Kaukauna — Kaukauna Klub All-Stars came through with an 11 to 1 victory in their first game of the season yesterday afternoon at Murphy's Corners. Bill Alger, who pitched for five innings, allowed no hits, with Sherman Powers dealing out but one in the last two frames. The Klub scored two runs in the first inning.

Art Koehn and Frank McCormack, each with 4 hits, led the 18-blow star attack, while Powers had 3. The opening lineup for the Klub showed Alger on the mound, Pels Kappell, catcher, Powers, first base, Frank Dean, second base, John Nies, shortstop, Art Koehn, third base, Ed Ewing, short centerfield, Frank McCormack, left field, Don Van Abel, centerfield, and Henry Tatro, right field.

Citizenship Program Will be Held Tonight

Kaukauna — At 7:45 tonight in the civic auditorium the third of a series of meetings in preparation for Citizenship day will be held, with James P. Cavanaugh, superintendent of schools, in charge. Cavanaugh urges all young people 21 years old, or who will be 21 before the fall election, to attend. A short general discussion period will be followed by games and dancing.

Cats do not yield catgut. This type of cord is produced from the intestines of sheep, and occasionally mules and horses.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. William Dowling is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

MODEST MAIDENS

State to Transplant Arctic Grouse in Game Experiment

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau — The transplanting of foreign game bird species to Wisconsin environment, accomplished successfully several times in the last decade by the state conservation department and private game managers, will be tried again soon with ptarmigan, it was learned here today.

The state game and fur farm at Poynette has received a batch of 19 of the Arctic grouse for breeding stock, and according to conservation officials, an attempt will be made to acclimate the young in some of Wisconsin's own northern barrens, particularly in the Bayfield county region of the southern shore of Lake Superior.

The breeding stock was obtained from the conservation department of the province of Manitoba, Canada, according to H. W. MacKenzie, conservation director.

Native of North

The ptarmigan is a native of the northern regions, and has several varieties. It possesses a natural protective coloring ability, having a white coat in the winter, and a dark brown dress in the summer and fall seasons.

The most conspicuously successful recent effort at introduction of foreign bird species in Wisconsin was with Chukar partridge.

The state conservation department started breeding the species at the state game farm several years ago, and has planted specimens in small quantities through the state for three seasons. This year it is expected that production will be stepped up, because the parent stock has been built up for quantity production, and about 20,000 of the variety will be released. The state has thus far failed to declare an open season for the species, however.

Harbor Pilot Enjoys Vacation by Accident

North Sydney, N. S. — "Gone with the wind" is what happened to Capt. David Brenton, pilot and harbor master of Port aux Basques, Newfoundland.

Brenton passed through here on his way home after traveling 4,500 miles on a trip that was expected to be only two miles at the outset.

He piloted a steamer out to sea and when he attempted to get aboard the pilot boat to go ashore, heavy winter winds kicked up the seas so that he had to abandon his plans.

There was nothing to do but stay aboard the steamer and continue on to Florida, the ship's destination.

Although such trips have disadvantages, mainly through limited wardrobe, Brenton was able to have a nice southern vacation with full pay and got a Florida tan in the bargain.

Voters in Survey Condemn Nazi Invasion of Norway But Overwhelmingly Oppose America Going to War

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J. — Hitler's lightning-like invasion of Denmark and Norway, on the pretext of protecting their neutrality from Allied interference, is condemned as unjustified by an overwhelming majority of American voters in a national survey. But there is virtually no sentiment for America going to war as a result of the invasion. Even in the group of states where the Scandinavian population is large, American participation in the war is opposed by a decisive vote.

Within a few days after the Nazi blitzkrieg began in Scandinavia the American Institute of Public Opinion launched its national survey to measure this country's reaction.

The results underline the basic attitude of the American public toward the war ever since it started last autumn—strong sympathy for the Allies and for victims of Nazi invasion, but an overwhelming desire for the United States to keep its army and navy at home and stay out of the conflict.

The invasion of Denmark and Norway has thus far brought no change in this sentiment, judging by the survey results. Last December nearly 97 voters in every 100 polled were against going to war; today the proportion is almost exactly the same.

When Hitler laid claim to Danzig and the Polish Corridor last September, the overwhelming majority of American voters polled by the Institute believed his action was not justified. When the European war broke out a few days later, interviewers found Americans of the opinion that Hitler was to blame. The public attitude toward his new invasion in Scandinavia can be seen from the following:

"Do you think Germany was justified in marching into Denmark and Norway?"

Yes, Germany was justified 7%
No, she was not justified... 93%
Only one person in every 14 (7 per cent) had no opinion on this issue.

The Scandinavian invasion is simply one more of a long series of Nazi acts which American voters disapprove. It is all the more interesting, then, to note how little change there has been in war sentiment here in recent months. Today's survey results on going to war compare as follows with the vote four months ago.

Today's December
Voters Saying U. S. Should Fight
Germany..... 37% 35%
Voters Opposed to Going to War
With Germany..... 96.3 96.5

Voters in Survey Condemn Nazi Invasion of Norway But Overwhelmingly Oppose America Going to War

The kings of the three beleaguered Scandinavian countries—King Haakon of Norway, King Gustav of Sweden and King Christian of Denmark.

The Scandinavian population in the United States is concentrated chiefly in nine states. Lumping these nine states together in one group, the poll shows sentiment differing but little from that of the rest of the country.

The nine states with the highest proportion of immigrant Scandinavian or first generation in 1930 are Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Washington, Utah, Nebraska, Iowa and Wisconsin.

The vote of these states as a group follows:

States with Highest Proportion Of Scandinavian Population

Thinks Germany Was Justified..... 5%
Thinks Germany Was Not Justified..... 95%
Think U. S. Should Go to War With Germany..... 5%
Think U. S. Should Not Go to War With Germany..... 95%
When Soviet Russia invaded Finland last winter it was only a matter of months before agitation began here for a loan to help the Finns. The beleaguered Norway has not applied for loans here since the invasion. In today's public opinion study the Institute found a majority opposed at this time to granting a military loan to Norway for the purchase of war supplies in this country. Forty-three per cent favor such a loan to 57 per cent opposed.

It is true, however, that there has not been much public discussion of what the United States should do if Norway were to seek a loan. A discussion of the pros and cons might easily influence opinion one way or another.

At the time of the Finnish war, 58 per cent approved a loan to the Finns, but only if it were a non-military loan, that is, a loan not used for the purchase of war materials. Only about two-fifths (39 per cent) were willing to go farther and grant Finland a loan for war materials.

Sentiment for a war loan is thus higher in the case of Norway (43 per cent) than in the case of Finland even though the Scandinavian invasion only began a few weeks ago.

The main reasons which voters give for disapproving the Nazi invasion of Scandinavia are that "there is never any justification for stealing," that big countries should "respect the rights of smaller nations," and that neither Norway nor Denmark had interfered with Germany. Some voters called the invasion example of "Hitler's mad lust for power."

Those voters who, on the other hand, think Germany was justified in invading the northern countries declare that the Allies forced Germany into it with their blockade, that the Allies would have gone into Denmark and Norway if Ger-

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

The Death of a Theory

Less than a year ago—to be exact, on May 11, 1939—the late Senator Borah issued a statement which needs to be reprinted today. The text in full is as follows:

When I read of the four nations—Norway, Denmark, Finland and Sweden—saying to Hitler, and in effect to the world, that "we are going to be neutral and run our own business in our own way," I cannot but believe that it will afford some comfort, and possibly some courage, to people in this country who think we cannot keep out of war, that we cannot be neutral, and that we cannot have our own national policy.

When we think of these nations, situated as they are, revealing the foresight and the courage which they are doing again, it ought to be helpful to us who know to the demands and policies of other nations.

We should not have so very much trouble in outlining a safe, sound and neutral policy if it were not for the fact that we seem to be constantly concerned about what we shall do, or what we ought to do, with reference to the affairs of other nations.

I venture to say there are some neutrality bills which never would be offered, or at least never would have the slightest chance of consideration, if it were not because these neutrality bills, were supposed to be of very great interest to certain other nations.

The real reason why these nations are successful in their effort to take care of their own interests and maintain their own policies is because they are not trying to play power politics. But the government of the United States cannot divorce itself apparently from the great desire to play power politics, to become a factor in the power politics of Europe.

Was Based On Theory

Of Domestic Policy

This statement would have no particular importance now if it were merely one more example of a prophecy confounded by events. But Senator Borah's confident conviction that the Scandinavian countries would remain at peace was not the kind of error that any one might make if he were trying to estimate the chance, of let us say, an invasion of Holland or of Italian intervention in the war or of Japanese action in the Dutch East Indies. Predictions of this sort depend upon a knowledge of hidden facts and upon inferences. The most seasoned diplomats and journalistic observers can do no better than to estimate the probabilities.

Senator Borah's prediction was of a wholly different sort. It did not rest upon a careful study of the position of the Scandinavian countries but upon a theory, the theory that no matter what their position no matter what the policies of their neighbors these four Scandinavian countries would be safe because they were walking the one and only, the straight and the narrow path of peace.

They were safe, he felt sure, from the course of war, not because they were well armed and united and supported by strong neighbors but because each of them stood absolutely alone and was not concerned with "the affairs of other nations." It was Senator Borah's profound lifelong conviction that this is "the real reason why these nations are successful" in staying out of war for he believed that war comes not from aggression but from entanglement that it is not the aggressors abroad who drive a country to war but the misadvised meddling war-mongers at home.

Had not the Danes, the Norwegians and the Swedes practiced an isolationist policy successfully in the war of 1914-18 though they were right on the edge of the war, whereas we at a distance of 800 miles had allowed ourselves to become entangled by "selling arms, giving credits and listening to British propaganda" Did this not prove that the Scandinavians had discovered the secret of how to remain at peace?

Policy Failed to Work

In Changed Situation

No one I think, will say that the Scandinavians have not followed to the bitter end the isolationist policy which Senator Borah commended so warmly as a model to all the world. The interesting question, then, is why Scandinavian isolationism was successful in 1914-18 and a terrible disaster in 1939-40. In both wars they have followed the same line of policy: in the first war they were safe and made money and in the second war they are a battlefield and are ruined. Something is radically different, and that something is certainly not their own policy. It must be something different in the situation around them, in the affairs of other nations, which, according to Senator Borah, they were wise to ignore.

Their situation this time has been radically different. Then, Russia was at war with Germany; had the Kaiser invaded Scandinavia he would have collided not only with the British and French coming from western Norway but with the Russians coming from Finland and Sweden and the Baltic Sea. Now, Russia and Germany are temporary partners, and Hitler has helped Stalin defeat Finland and Stalin stands by while Hitler attacks Denmark and Norway and perhaps Sweden. Scandinavian isolationism has not changed but the balance of power which Senator Borah thought was of no decisive importance, has changed completely.

Second, in the other war the Balkans were the weakest small countries: Germany had allies in Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria, and Turkey, and therefore the German push was in that direction. In this war, the Balkans are a military and diplomatic hornet's nest, what with their own military forces, the conflicting interests of Russia, Italy, and Germany, the changed position of Turkey, and the presence of a powerful Allied army in the Near East. The Scandinavians are, therefore, the easier prey; for in addition to being isolationists they are on this occasion isolated: that is to say they stand alone by their own choice and they have no powerful friends near at hand.

Third, in the other war the United States stood up as the armed champion of neutral rights. This meant that the Kaiser could not begin to wage war totally in the northern seas which wash the shores of Scandinavia until he was willing to face the consequences of American participation in the war. Therefore, before we entered the war, Scandinavia was protected by the restraint which we as a great neutral imposed upon Germany. After we entered the war, Scandinavia was protected by the fact that Germany had her hands too full for any side-shows. But in this war we have surrendered neutral rights wherever we think Hitler's submarines, air-planes and mines are capable of causing trouble, and we have announced that we shall abandon them anywhere else in the world, except only within 200 miles of the American coasts.

Balance of Power

is Controlling Factor

The great lesson of the Scandinavian tragedy will not have been learned until men understand the difference between an isolationist foreign policy and an isolated position in the world. In the other war the Scandinavians were protected by a balance of power in which the Allies, Russia, and the United States kept Germany in check. Because they were protected and therefore not isolated in the face of aggressive neighbors, they could make an isolationist policy work. In this war the balance of power was upset from the outset by the Russian partnership with Germany and the American surrender of neutral rights upon the sea. This left the Scandinavians isolated, and, therefore, precisely because they had become isolated—Finland in the presence of Russia, Denmark and Norway in the presence of Germany, Sweden in the presence of both Germany and Russia—the policy of isolation has been a disaster to all Scandinavian countries.

They would not prepare, trusting to the illusion that to be aloof is to be safe, and, refusing to hang together, they are being hanged separately.

The Scandinavian countries are involved in a devastating war because their leaders and their people had enjoyed such a long security from war and from military burdens that they had forgotten the fundamental difference between practicing isolation and becoming isolated. Our own isolationists have forgotten or have never understood the difference. But the founding fathers understood it perfectly, and the reason they made an isolationist policy work successfully for a hundred years is that they took good care in ample time to prevent the United States from becoming isolated. For they knew, as any one can see by reading the correspondence of Jefferson, Madison and Monroe, that it was not the oceans which would enable us to practice isolationism but the fact that the oceans would be controlled by ourselves and our friends.

The latter-day isolationists are a dangerous influence because, like the Scandinavians, they are running the gravest risk of isolating this country. They do not understand what Jefferson saw clearly, that an isolationist policy will work only if a country is not in fact isolated. Once a country is in fact isolated, it can no longer enjoy the luxury of an isolationist foreign policy; it must then arm to the limit, seek allies, and live insecurely.

That is why Senator Borah's statement about Scandinavia is so profoundly significant in the light of what has happened to the Scandinavians. For it reveals the great illusion, an illusion that has in some degree paralyzed all the democracies—the illusion that wars can be escaped by avoiding them and not by preventing and resisting them.

May Luncheon at Black Creek Church Will be Held Thursday

Black Creek—"What Do Ye More Than Others?" is the theme of the program to be given at the annual May luncheon to be held at St. John Evangelical church at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Churches which will participate are: Congregational church, Shiocton; Emmanuel Evangelical and St. John Evangelical, town of Cicero; Methodist and the local church.

The guest speaker will be the Rev. Milton Feldt of Seymour and Mrs. J. J. Laird will give a talk on "Migrants' Work." Mrs. A. F. Grollmus will give a reading on the life of Marion Anderson and Mrs. John Minischmidt, "The Purpose of the May Luncheon."

A musical election will be given by Shiocton and the combined choir will sing "Whole Wide World For Jesus" and "The Lord's Prayer." The group will sing "Christ for the World We Sing" and "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." The Rev. H. A. Bernhardt will give the closing prayer.

The luncheon will follow the program in the sub-auditorium of the church. The prayer will be given by the Rev. A. F. Grollmus and a play "Abounding Strength" will be given by the following characters: Mother—Mrs. Peter Kitzinger, youth—Mrs. Earl Pasch; church—Mrs. Louis Wehrman; torch bearers—Messdames Roman Birkholz, Ervin Rohloff, Raymond Park, Harvey Weishoff, H. J. Brandt and W. F. Hahn. A round table discussion will follow. Mrs. John Minischmidt is general chairman and the luncheon committee is comprised of Mrs. W. F. Hahn, Mrs. Raymond Park; decorations—Mrs. Ervin Rohloff, Mrs. Roman Birkholz.

Officers of the Shiocton, Nichols and Black Creek Game club have mailed out letters listing the program and the 77 prizes which will be given at their annual gathering, Tuesday evening, at the Black Creek Community hall.

They have the new 1940 membership buttons and members will again be asked to pay the annual membership dues.

The program, which is open to the public, will start at 7:45. There will be no admission charge.

A VISION GONE TO POT

Because the Post-Crescent occasionally finds room to print the details of governmental pipedreams the conclusion should not be drawn that we have exhausted the field. We haven't space enough with the demands of other news to furnish our readers the story of all the collapses into the mudholes of the starchy-eyed plans of a bunch of fellows of strident voice and high applause who divided authority under the New Deal even if they weren't "quite all there."

But perhaps our readers have not forgotten that in the first year of the New Deal Secretary Ickes announced a scheme whereby a community would be constructed for needleworkers at Heighstown, New Jersey.

The first announcement stated that in a model factory textiles would be given their customary treatment and 200 families from the needle trades of New York would thus be supported. New houses were to be built, pretty and modern. And an immense apple orchard and garden was to appear as a sideline so that when the machinery was not humming in the factories the busy little bees could still be humming in the orchard. It was all like the song "Tripping Through the Tulips," although for some reason tulips were not mentioned among the flowers.

The entire project was to be strictly New Deal, absolutely according to patent and copyright so that when the country went completely wild over it the Republicans couldn't claim any possible credit.

Great names were placed upon the Board of Trustees at Heighstown, Dr. Albert Einstein and the Rev. Jonah Wise, among others. We do not know whether Dr. Einstein was placed there merely because of his acquaintance with the stars and his ability to deal in astronomical figures, but the suggestion is worth following out.

After two full years and the expenditure of a million dollars the goal seemed quite a ways off. But those in charge said that, given another year and a few more millions, everything would be hotsytotsy. Yet before the third year was out even friends of the administration were calling the whole project "a chaotic mud-hole."

Even given an unlimited treasury and living doodlebugs to sign checks and buy goods the adventure got into the toils of the law. It undertook the manufacture of some articles without consulting the patentee and it had spent $300,000 upon that angle before it learned the right direction to take. The $300,000 was lost. But few would criticize such a small loss if worse conditions were not to arise.

By its fourth year the garment factory was opened and 83 families had moved into the homes. But there was none who cared to work those 500 acres of land which it was promised were to be cultivated and produce full cellars of fruits and vegetables for the winter season. The machinery seemed to stick together, the management became incensed at delays and the workers seemed to have become tired of promises of milk and honey when they only found crude plans and even more crude execution.

So in 1937 a workers' cooperative corporation leased the factory. By that time even Ned Sparks Ickes had a touch of writer's cramp in shelling out lucre for the mudhole. Moreover, needle-workers didn't seem to care for it. At least when the summer of 1938 rolled around about 100 of its houses were empty.

Last October the government moved in upon the premise that it was saving itself. It bought at auction the garment-making machinery and equipment of the factory. The government might have done the same thing for the purpose of helping the people thereabouts forget the awful failure. It is asserted by those who have followed all the details that the loss of the treasury will be about four millions all told.

Such is the shipwreck occasioned by a government that seemed willing to undertake the most fantastic schemes of the most beautiful dreamers.

AND TELL OF TIME

A book was published about two years ago entitled "And Tell of Time" which had the peculiar misfortune of being concerned with the same historical period as "Gone With the Wind" and of being issued just about the time that book was at the height of its popularity. "Gone With the Wind" stole all the thunder the latter book might have enjoyed, and Laura Krey's volume never received the popular support its contents merited.

It too is a fine human interest story laid in the South during the Reconstruction, a story of the fight a landed family had to wage to re-establish itself in a land where all law and rules and regulations were voided once Lee had surrendered to Grant.

This tale is laid in Texas and concerns a youth who fought in the Civil war with the famed Texas Rangers, those hard-riding, high-spirited pioneers of a new land in the West who wanted to keep right on fighting after the South was crumpled and practically destroyed. They tried to get their Confederate leaders to retreat back to Texas and fight it out there with the Yankees.

The story it preaches is the same sermon we are hearing so much today, that war cannot accomplish any great change in human relations, that it only disrupts them temporarily, and that as soon as it is ended a people will struggle to re-establish the same type of civilization it knew before.

For though the North thought in altruistic terms of freeing the Negroes in one fell swoop, the South knew that comparative freedom for the Blacks would of necessity have to be a long and slow process.

As Jake so admirably puts it in "And Tell of Time": "Free? How's a nigger gwine-a be free, ef'n he still has to wuk? And how's he gwine-a eat, less'n he does wuk?"

Cavin Darcy took unto himself a wife and returned to Texas to see what he could salvage of a country whose economy, public life and morals had been almost completely wrecked by the war and the Northern carpet-baggers who followed it into the South.

He worked diligently at his land, formed an embryo Klu Klux Klan society among his neighbors to keep things under control until law and order was re-established, and took a hand in finally electing capable and honest officials to public office. After ten years of struggle he could proudly proclaim that "Now we have things back about to where they were before it all started."

The Negroes on his plantation, working as tenants, though they did not know what this meant, now called him Mister instead of Master, but their relationship was much the same. They still worked for him and he still looked out for their physical and spiritual welfare.

One of the greatest threats to public Welfare the Texans had to fight was graft in public office and the tendency of the radical Republican and Populist officials to boost governmental expenditures overnight.

Their excesses of spending in a few years turned many of their supporters back into the conservative Democratic fold, and finally the Texans succeeded in electing Oran Roberts as governor. When Roberts declared himself after election for a "pay-as-we-go" policy on expenditures, Texans again breathed easier. "That's the only honest policy, any time," Roberts said. "This state has been assuming extraneous obligations beyond the capacity of the productive wealth of the country to sustain."

As war again threatens the United States many of its far-sighted citizens today once again see themselves facing the same menace and the same necessity of a public policy.

The only change which has occurred since the days of the Reconstruction is a turn-about in the terminology of the party labels.

MINDING OUR OWN BUSINESS

The most recent Gallup poll should be studied carefully by our leaders in Washington. It indicates beyond any serious doubt that the American People can disagree with the policies and practices of other nations and still be far, far short of any slightest desire to go to war to enforce their opinions on others.

While 93 per cent of the persons reached by the poll believed Germany was not justified in marching into Denmark and Norway, only 37 per cent believed that the United States should fight Germany. Those are interesting figures indeed. They are not startling for nearly anyone without giving much thought to the matter probably would have said that we have always a noisy 2 per cent just spoiling for a scrap.

Dr. Gallup segregated the returns from the states of Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Washington, Utah, Nebraska and Iowa where large Scandinavian populations are known to exist for the purpose of comparing the votes in these states with the national average. In the states mentioned 95 per cent of those voting expressed the opinion that Germany was not justified in her raids on Scandinavian countries. But here again only 5 per cent believed that the United States should go to war with Germany. The figure is a trifle stronger than the 3.7 per cent given for the nation but is still an unimportant minority.

The strong hints that congressmen and senators from the states with a high proportion of Scandinavian population would be obliged to change their views in many

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—There was a significant glint in the eyes of inner circle third terms when the news came over the wires that the president planned a transcontinental trip in June. The boys had the proverbial look of the cat that swallowed the canary.

They consider the tour one of their biggest breaks to dissolve any reluctance Roosevelt may have against running again. Reason for this belief is the conviction that once he gets out into the country, away from the fierce partisanship of Washington, and scents the plaudits of the multitude, there will be a decisive psychological effect.

Lending color to this theory is an episode that occurred in 1938, when administration strategists were laboring strenuously to persuade Herbert Lehman to run for a fourth term as governor of New York in order to head off up-and-coming Tom Dewey.

Lehman wasn't eager to make the race and withheld his decision right up to the night of the nominating convention. When he entered the hall he was greeted with a tremendous demonstration, and Roosevelt who was following the tense situation over the radio, turned to the little group of intimates around him and said:

"You hear that! Everything is going to be all right now. Herbert will accept. No man who has been in public life can resist the lure of public acclamation. It always gets them."

JACKSON OR HULL

There is no question that around Christmas time Roosevelt definitely discussed the idea of making Cordell Hull the Democratic nominee for president. More recently, however, he has been equally definite regarding the superior merits of Attorney General Bob Jackson.

This will surprise most political observers, especially conservative Democrats and those who saw the recent Roosevelt-Hull popularity chart prepared by the Gallup poll.

Nevertheless, Roosevelt is firmly convinced that Bob Jackson, if nominated, would be a better vote-getter than the secretary of state. And he bases this upon the following factors:

1. Jackson would get the Negro vote, whereas Hull wouldn't.
2. Jackson would have a bigger hold on labor, whereas Hull could not carry John L. Lewis and much of the CIO with him.
3. Jackson probably would be more popular with the farmers in view of the Hull trade treaties.

On the other hand, Jackson would not lose the conservative and Solid South, even though southern party leaders were not enthusiastic about him.

In view of this Jackson talk, some of Roosevelt's close friends are beginning to think that the president plans to throw all of his now potent delegation of support to his attorney general. But most of them are still betting that in the final showdown, FDR will run for a third term.

Note—Biggest IF in the above is whether Jackson could be nominated even with Roosevelt's support. There are many Democrats who doubt this.

"IN THE SPRING A YOUNG MAN'S FANCY"

Mrs. Blair Banister, assistant treasurer of the United States, is bug-eyed with worry over the springlike fancy of her brother, Carter Glass.

The charming, cantankerous, much-loved senator from Virginia, having spent 82 tumultuous and distinguished years, now is seriously toying with the idea of matrimony.

She is Mrs. Mary Meade of Amherst, Virginia, an attractive widow of about 50. Mrs. Meade teaches school just north of the senator's home town of Lynchburg, and almost every week-end, the senator has taken time off either from his legislative duties in Washington or his editorial supervision in Lynchburg, to motor to Amherst.

Senator Glass has been a widower for some time, and appears to be so serious about a new matrimonial venture that it has caused much concern to his family. At the age of 82, the senator continues to be sprightly, energetic, and just as bellicose as ever. But his family is doing everything in its power to head off a second trip to the altar.

MUSSOLINI VS. CIANO

Intelligence reports out of Rome indicate a widening rift between Mussolini and his hand-some young son-in-law, foreign minister, Count Ciano. The rift is over the Berlin Axis and whether Italy should enter the war.

It Duce has a tremendous admiration for the German military machine, believes it will win the war, and figures Italy's fate is definitely tied up with the Nazis. He is absolutely convinced, and nothing can move him, not even his son-in-law or the king and crown prince of Italy.

Ciano, on the other hand, figures that in the long run the Allies will win the war. Also he cannot help but note that all around him the Italian people speak of Mussolini with affection but as the "old man," as if he were slipping. (He is the oldest of the dictators.)

As far as diplomatic observers can find out, Ciano wants Italy to make all the money it can during the war, take whatever financial bails are offered, and drive the sharpest possible bargain regarding new territory, but in the end side with France and England.

To get into war against the wishes of the Italian people (and there is no question that the people are emphatically against war), Ciano feels might eventually mean revolution and the end of the Fascist dictatorship.

Some members of the Italian embassy in Washington make little effort to hide their pro-Ally feelings.

HULL'S VISITORS

A taxicab pulled up at the diplomatic entrance of the state department, and a man stepped out, holding an empty liquor bottle in his hand. Instantly a traffic officer approached him.

The man scanned over and placed the liquor bottle on the curb, with elaborate care.

"What do you want here?" said the officer. The man straightened himself with dignity.

"I want to see the secretary of state," he said. The officer reflected a moment. Then he said, "You step inside and speak to the guard."

Later, the officer and the guard compared notes. The guard said, "I had just bounced him out. What did you send him back to me for?"

"Well," said the officer, "I don't work this beat regular, and I don't know everybody who might have business with the secretary. Some of these big shots get high, too."

(Copyright, 1940, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

respects due to the German raids to the north should be somewhat tempered by the results of this poll. The fact of the matter is that our large Scandinavian populations have long since become Americans of the highest rating for permanence of residence and devotion to their new homeland. While many of them feel keenly the wrong that has been done to Norway and Denmark they are in the majority cool headed, thoughtful persons who will go to the same lengths to keep America neutral that their cousins abroad have gone to to keep Scandinavia neutral.

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—The attitude of the army, navy and marine folk toward death is not that of the average layman.

These men who walk and sail and fly with death have come to regard this one of the Four Horsemen pretty matter - of factly and their only concern is that he not catch them waiting in courage or bearing the stigma of dishonor. Their women feel the same way about it.

Military funerals are solemn affairs certainly the most impressive, and beautiful of all military rituals, but there is little of sadness or grief about them. When taps are blown, and life's colors struck, the band strikes up a quick march and its "on with the show."

The Home of Heroes

Thus, beautiful Arlington cemetery, on the gentle hills and ravines above the Potomac, has a different atmosphere than any graveyard in the land. It is not a place of sadness and keeping, but rather a field of honor . . . a place where the living may come, not to grieve, but to pay homage to those who have given their lives to a nation and a cause. And military folk look on Arlington as a field of honor, where it is their privilege to lie down with the heroes who have marched before.

It is this feeling of special privilege, of almost private ownership, which causes the Arlington staff, headed by a colonel, occasional trouble.

For years, it has become the traditional right of the men who are to rest in Arlington to select the site of their interment.

The General Chooses

Almost any warm, sunny day, you can see on the paths of Arlington old men or old couples strolling about, eying this view or that with the object of selecting their plot. Once in a while, conflicting selections are made. To find a solution to these often calls for all the diplomacy that the staff can summon.

There was one old general, long retired, who spent months selecting his site. Almost every day when the weather was good, he and his wife would go to Arlington and tread the paths and search for their cemetery plot.

At last they found it, and the colonel, with considerable maneuvering, managed to assign it to them. The old couple were delighted and a beautiful old elm that spread over a corner of the plot.

They Liked That Elm

Throughout the spring and summer and fall, they would go to the cemetery and sit in the shade of their tree and enjoy the view of the Potomac and distant Washington.

They came to be well known to the Arlington. For the general and his wife, the staff came to have a genuine affection.

Imagine the colonel's horror, when he discovered during a casual early spring inspection, that the general's tree had disappeared. He had developed blight and the foresters had removed it.

The colonel went into action, routed out a detail of huskies and searched the Virginia hills until he found a big elm that matched the general's. Transplanting it was a whole of a job, the colonel recalls, but he got it done. The ground beneath was sodded before the general and his lady made their next visit.

The colonel and I are happy to report that the general's elm is now one of the finest in Arlington.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

It sure is funny how every neutral bombed by the Nazis always has a lot of incriminating papers lying all over the country for the Germans to discover for press, news reels and radio audiences.

I guess it's practically compulsory for all British, French and neutral officers to carry brief cases full of anti-German plots and for all privates, police and Boy Scouts to carry diaries revealing detailed plans. It goes hard with any neutral that don't have "those papers" on it. Look at Denmark! She didn't have any and the Nazis gave her the works without even bothering to make an explanation.

Of course, as a rule, if a neutral or friends haven't any such papers, Germany can provide 'em, with "positively no waiting." She has a half-dozen factories manufacturing white papers on a quantity production basis and as many more turning out diaries, confessions, etc., in colors and dyes to suit. I hear.

The peculiar thing about it all is that no plot ever catches a Nazi off guard and no papers ever take him by surprise. He knows all about 'em before the plotters do. If I was a neutral, I'd want a good plot against Germany. I wouldn't try to write it out myself. I'd just send to Ribbentrop for it.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Monday, April 28, 1930
With 270 players on the course Sunday and 145 on Saturday, over 400 persons made use of the municipal golf course over the weekend.

Monday morning Eb. Harwood, superintendent of the course, turned over $279.60 to Fred Bachman, city treasurer, bringing the amount collected on the municipal course thus far that season to $850.

A demand for automatic signal lights on College avenue between Richmond and Drew streets was indicated that day in interviews with merchants doing business on the avenue.

J. E. Roberts, Kimbely, was elected president of the Little Nine

Monday, April 28, 1930
The fact is that at the time Heil was making that speech, the treasurer's ledger showed a general fund balance of $11,418.595, and the general fund is the only fund with which Heil is concerned in the payment of the state expenses for which he was responsible.

The total of all funds in the treasury was higher, but the balance is securely out of the governor's reach, and represents trust funds for schools, wardens' pensions, teachers' retirement funds etc. and have no relation whatever to the solvency of the state government. Mr. Heil was either reading the wrong figures, or exaggerating.

25 YEARS AGO
Monday, May 3, 1915
Mayor August Knuppel said at a council meeting that morning that he favored the purchase of a hook and ladder truck in the near future and thought it was cheaper to have a motorized fire department.

There was only a quarter of an inch rainfall during the month of April, according to Thiede's government observations. In April of 1914 the fall was 3.56 inches.

"PSST—NOW HIT HIM IN THE BALKANS!"

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—it is now quite apparent that the principal issue at the state Republican convention in Green Bay next month will be the contest between Robert K. Henry of Jefferson and Governor Julius P. Heil of Milwaukee for the organization's endorsement in the governorship race.

There can no longer be much doubt that Henry is a candidate for the approval of the Republican convention, Republican circles at the capitol report, in fact, that several county delegations have already been pledged to him.

It is interesting to notice that the Henry movement has already reached the point where some of his enemies are sniping at him, although he has at no time acknowledged that he is a candidate. Henry is a power in state politics, and he has a lot of friends. But he also has enemies, including some people who used to be his friends.

INCONSISTENCY
Some of these latter are now pointing to his 1938 campaign as the Coalition leader, which he keynoted with the anti-LaFollette slogan. Henry in the 1938 campaign professed to be more interested in defeating the LaFollette regime than in getting himself elected to office, and when he withdrew in favor of Heil after the primary election, he ascribed his eagerness to defeat the LaFollettes as his reason for withdrawing.

Now that the LaFollette state administration has been effectively wiped out, together with most of its deeds, these Henry critics point out it is somewhat inconsistent with the 1938 statements of the Jefferson man to be put in the position of opposing the reelection of the man who accomplished the job, namely Julius P. Heil.

MARTIN SPOT
Confirmation by Gov. Heil of the story published here earlier about the plan to put a state administration ticket into the field this year puts Attorney General John E. Martin on the spot.

Martin is embarrassed because he wants to run for reelection under his own steam, although he will run as a Republican.

Because he delayed his announcement after he had previously decided to make it early in April, he is now in the position of having to decide between two alternatives, either of which will put him into the partisan position he wanted to avoid.

If he agrees to the administration ticket plan, he will be consenting to a candidacy on Heil's record, rather than his own. If he announces that he wants to run independently, without any reference to the doings of the Heil administration proper, he will be put into the position of repudiating the administration. Either choice will be exceedingly distasteful, he fears.

There were many arched eyebrows in the capitol the other day when Gov. Heil told a meeting of his "home-folks" in Milwaukee that he had $16,000,000 in the state treasury, and that consequently the financial situation in the capitol had been whipped.

The fact is that at the time Heil was making that speech, the treasurer's ledger showed a general fund balance of $11,418.595, and the general fund is the only fund with which Heil is concerned in the payment of the state expenses for which he was responsible.

The total of all funds in the treasury was higher, but the balance is securely out of the governor's reach, and represents trust funds for schools, wardens' pensions, teachers' retirement funds etc. and have no relation whatever to the solvency of the state government. Mr. Heil was either reading the wrong figures, or exaggerating.

From Hippocrates down to the 17th century doctors believed the veins had their origin in the liver and were the only vessels that contained blood. They believed the arteries contained air, because the arteries were always found empty after death.

Early in the 1600's, as every schoolboy knows, William Harvey discovered the circulation as we know it today, but nearly a century before Harvey published his researches (1578) Columbus (not our Christopher's relative) had described almost exactly the lesser circulation—the flow of blood from the right ventricle of the heart to the lungs and thence, purified or oxygenated, back to the left ventricle, to be pumped out thru the arteries to every part of the body—but Columbus failed to recognize the greater or general circulation which Harvey discovered. In those days there were only barber surgeons and venesection (bleeding) was the popular cure-all. Human dissection was a grave crime and carried the severest penalty.

There is insufficient popular understanding of the influence of breathing on the circulation. People in the north temperate and frigid zones are affectively vague about geography down around the equator. Often they are downright pushy about it. They never say knee if they mean hip, but they always say stomach, abdomen or diaphragm when it is obvious they mean belly.

The stomach is one of the organs in the body cavity called the abdomen with the accent on the do. The belly is the front wall of the abdomen, and there is no other word in English for it. The diaphragm is the principal breathing muscle, stretched like an inverted bowl across the middle of the torso or trunk, dividing it into the abdomen below and the thorax or chest cavity above. Its muscular fibres are attached to the insides of the lower ribs, tip of breastbone and front of the lower spine, and its central part is a thin, strong fibrous or tendinous membrane, covering stomach, liver, spleen like a tarpaulin over a haystack, but pierced by apertures to permit the aorta or great artery to pass from chest to abdomen, the vena cava or great vein from abdomen to thorax, the esophagus or gullet from thorax to abdomen, the thoracic duct or main trunk of the lymphatic system to convey lymph and chyle from abdomen to the internal jugular vein in the base of the neck, as well as some smaller apertures for nerves and veins.

When the diaphragm contracts it flattens down, squeezing or pressing down on the stomach, liver, gall-bladder, pancreas, spleen, intestines, and on the large volume of blood in the veins in the abdomen. At the same time, contraction of the diaphragm of course lowers the floor of the thoracic cavity, expands the chest capacity, and so air enters the lungs.

It is important to understand the function of the diaphragm, not only for cultivating good health and a good circulation but also for the benefits derived from proper use of the diaphragm in various ailments to be considered later.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

AIR IS MEDICINE

It is a general hospital rule that when a patient ceases to breathe the nurse shall report the fact to the doctor, whose province it is to confirm the observation and pronounce the patient deceased. Many still breathe who believe a good doctor can break up pneumonia fever or the flu if he gets the case in time. Many who have ceased breathing believed they could do it themselves if they had plenty of aspirin, acetanilide and whiskey on hand.

Dr. Bend's ride covered three counties and kept four teams and two drivers ailing night and day. He claimed he had never lost a pneumonia case in twenty years of practice, although on a few occasions the record was nearly spoiled. Local competitors averred, when Bend's patient ungraciously succumbed to heart failure after the doctor had pulled him thru the crisis, Bend never divulged the secret of his uncanny success. Maybe a habit of his accounted for it. He always carried in his bag an assortment of stories, not all of them parlor anecdotes, and when he found the sickroom atmosphere too gloomy he would contrive to recite a suitable story which, even if it shocked mother or the neighbors, was sure to activate the patient's diaphragm and so improve circulation.

From Hippocrates down to the 17th century doctors believed the veins had their origin in the liver and were the only vessels that contained blood. They believed the arteries contained air, because the arteries were always found empty after death.

Clapper Sees Serious Flaw In U. S. Defense Preparations

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—One glaring hole is left wide open in our defense preparations and it needs immediate attention.

We are neglecting to lay in adequate stocks of rubber and tin. These two commodities, essential alike for military and civilian needs, must be imported from across the Pacific from the Dutch and British East Indies at which Japan is looking hungrily. We might as well neglect to lay in an adequate supply of battlehips and airplane factories, for they are no more vital than the materials which are as basic to our industry as rubber and tin.

It is elementary that our national defense requires protection with regard to these supplies. And it also is elementary that if anything should happen in the far east to cut off our supply of rubber and tin, we should, at best, be quite some little time in reopening that traffic route.

Yet, in face of that situation, we have on hand in this country just about enough rubber to last us three months. We have just about enough tin to last us ten weeks.

It is not that the state department is asleep. For three years it has been trying to get action. It has tried, with practically no success, to induce congress to buy up reserve stocks. Yet we are still on a reserve which would last us but three months if our imports were suddenly interrupted.

In 1937 the state department asked congress for authority and money with which to lay in emergency stocks of rubber, tin and some other strategic raw materials which are not produced in this country. Finally last summer the authorization was obtained—but the amount of money allowed was pitifully inadequate.

The government asked for $25,000,000 a year. Last year congress gave $10,000,000, which if spent entirely on rubber would purchase less than a month's supply.

Congress Approves But Only With Chicken Feed

This year, with war raging and spreading, congress was asked to at least carry out the original schedule and appropriate $40,000,000, to compensate for last year's short-charge. But congress appropriated $12,500,000, graciously allowing $2,000,000 to be spent at once and the remainder during the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

In terms of what we are spending on other and no more essential kinds of preparedness, that is chicken feed. A few days ago the senate passed a naval appropriation bill carrying $963,000,000. It has voted money to start a third set of locks at Panama, to cost perhaps $300,000,000. Probably another naval expansion to cost $650,000,000 will soon be voted. The army supply bill runs to $785,000,000 and the war department is asking for $42,000,000 more. Yet we are content to ride along blithely on a three months supply of rubber and tin beyond which we are at the mercy of the outside world.

In terms of normal consumption of rubber and tin, the inadequacy of these funds for reserve purchases is equally glaring.

Last year our tin imports cost $71,000,000. Our rubber imports cost $178,000,000 and the price was low—the same quantity now would cost about $230,000,000. Yet congress allows $12,500,000 for building up reserves of all strategic materials during the next year.

Recent developments abroad have intensified the government's concern over this situation and it is possible that congress will be asked to reconsider and to look with more foresight at this vital phase of our national defense.

121st Anniversary Of Odd Fellows Is Observed at Seymour

Seymour—About one hundred attended the banquet of the Seymour lodge of Odd Fellows in celebration of the one hundred and twenty-first anniversary of Odd Fellows at 6:30 Friday evening in the lodge hall. B. J. Rohan, city superintendent of schools at Appleton, spoke on "Citizenship." The rest of the program included community singing; reading by Virgie Bunkelman; vocal solos by Emil Gosse and Geraldine Lorenz; clarinet solo by Teddy Hawkins and cornet solo by Buddy Trace. Dr. R. C. Finkle was the toastmaster. The banquet was attended by Odd Fellows and their wives and the Rebekah lodge and their husbands.

The annual spring concert of the music organizations of Seymour High school will be held Tuesday evening in the gymnasium beginning at 8 o'clock. Selections which have been prepared for the district music contests at Kaukauna in May will be offered by the band, mixed chorus, and girls' glee club.

Special features of the concert will be a group of selections by the junior band and a twirling demonstration by Mary Adamski Loneva Puls, and Delores Radder. Various vocal and instrumental ensembles will appear on the program.

After the concert a short business session in the Music Activity club will be held. There will be no admission charge.

Vote to Open School During Coming Term

Royalton — At a special school meeting last week in the Stanley's Landing rural school district it was voted to maintain the school for the 1940-41 school year.

Although the district includes a large territory, changes in population have caused number of pupils enrolled in the school to become very small. Originally the Stanley's Landing territory was a part of the Hobart rural school when that district was organized in 1857, and continued so until 1890 when it was set apart into a separate school district.

Sindahl Offers Individual Color Styling

All Paint Shades
Are Available at Firm's New Store

Complete Line of Quality Products Carried to Meet Demands

There is no need to put off painting because one can't decide on what color to use on his home or on the interior walls, according to A. C. Sindahl of the Sindahl Paint store, 519 W. Wisconsin avenue.

Paint colors are available in practically unlimited shades, and the Sindahl firm is equipped to provide them. Paints will be mixed to any shade and expert advice will be given as to the most pleasing color schemes in making the home neat and attractive.

"Springtime is painting time," Sindahl said. "Housecleaning is not a complete job unless steps are taken to keep the exterior and interior walls of the home from becoming shabby."

Sindahl said that painting of a home or building should be looked upon as an investment, because it prevents depreciation and acts as a preservative.

New Paint Colors

Every year new paint colors are popular, and the Sindahl store keeps up with the times in meeting the demands with a quality product. No job is too large or too small for the staff of expert painters and decorators of the Sindahl firm to handle. For the person who wants to do his own work, Sindahl will advise as to the best paints to use. A full line of brushes and other painting materials are available at the Sindahl store on W. Wisconsin avenue.

Individual color styling is offered by the Sindahl company. Choosing a paint color from a color chart sometimes fails to meet the requirements of a room because of furniture or styling, and here is where the Sindahl company is ready to serve. The company offers expert advice on color styling.

Stock for every paint need is carried at the Sindahl store which was built about a year ago. Sindahl has issued an invitation to every resident of Appleton and vicinity to inspect the new building. In addition to paints and painting supplies the store also carries a stock of wall paper and hardware.

Vigoro, plant food, on grass lawns, flowers and vegetables.

Use of Vigoro means thick, luxuriant grass, inches higher than that not treated, rich green in color and strong and healthy. Those sparse and undeveloped patches in the lawn disappear within a short time after this "magic" plant food is used.

The 11 food elements needed for full growth of flowers and vegetables are found in Vigoro. The complete plant food, Vigoro, also can be used with success on trees.

Lawns should be fed Vigoro early, before the grass starts to grow, because it doesn't have to be watered in.

Vigoro was the approved plant food of the golden gate International exposition in San Francisco. The 5,000 rose bushes in a garden of breathtaking beauty at the New York World's fair were all treated with Vigoro. For professional horticulturists and plain home gardeners alike, Vigoro has been producing marvelous results for 15 years.

Vigoro may be obtained at Schlafers store, 115-119 W. College avenue.

Quality Heating Equipment Will Save Fuel, Give Added Comfort

The moderate additional expense of the installation of the highest quality heating equipment involves less than the cost of fuel. It is soon more than equalled in fuel saving and is well worth the increased comfort that it affords, according to L. A. Manthei, owner of the Appleton Heating company, 1119 W. Wisconsin avenue.

Mr. Manthei is the Appleton representative for Sunbeam heating and air-conditioning units manufactured by the American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation.

"The home builder who selects a cheap, inferior product in the field of heating equipment is only penalizing himself in the long run," Manthei says. "He might save money at the outset, but before long he will discover that an inferior unit will add to his fuel bills and soon discount any initial 'savings' that influenced him in purchasing it. On the other hand, high-quality heating equipment selected for its adaptability to a particular home will prove to be more economical and provide considerably more comfort and less bother through the years."

Just as in anything else connected with home building, proper installation methods and proper equipment will assure the home builder of lasting satisfaction with his heating system, Manthei points out.

Many Models

The Sunbeam coal-burning air-conditioners, in order to satisfy everybody's reasonable preferences, are available in many different units. The series Nos. 80 and 5500 with boiler plate steel heating element are made in stoker fired as well as hand fired models. They are also available in oil burning models which accommodate virtually any make of gun type or rotary type oil burner. The series No. 20, with a heavy cast iron heating element, meets the demand of the average home owner who wants the benefits of air-conditioning and is seeking a moderately priced unit to install in a new home or to replace an inefficient furnace.

With all Sunbeam units, cooler air circulates between an inner casing and the cabinet. This insulating air prevents heat loss into the basement and conserves fuel.

In building or buying a home, most people plan or seek one with "through ventilation" when the windows are open. But during the heating season when windows are closed, there is no ventilation. And it is during the winter months that there is the greatest need for it, when Sunbeam units will give a home the clean freshness that it normally has in summer.

What is more, with Sunbeam air-conditioning heating units, the basement can become the most popular room in the home. Finished in an attractive, two-tone green, the Sunbeam air-conditioner can be located out of the way and the basement room utilized for pleasure and recreation.

Engel Has Heating System That Gives Economy, Comfort

Force-Flo Provides Luxurious Warmth at Minimum Cost

Home owners who have struggled and suffered with faulty systems and prospective home owners who want to save themselves money and grief are advised to consult the J. A. Engel Heating company, 326 E. College avenue, which features the Force-Flo radiant warm water heating system, a revolutionary method.

Engineers, architects, heating contractors and home owners long have recognized warm water as the ideal heating medium. Gravity circulation systems, however, presented a high first cost and operating limitations. It remained for Force-Flo to better apply the sound, basic principle of hot water heat with the addition of a pump which provides forced circulation and permits installation in any type of a building.

Through a patented distribution system of small, inconspicuous piping and radiation, it has made possible complete, efficient and rapid circulation for warm water to produce even, constant warmth in all rooms. Sluggish circulation now is a thing of the past.

Economical Operation

The efficiency that Force-Flo delivers in cozy warmth gives an economy of operation that appears incredible when compared with previous cost standards. Force-Flo has reduced cost of installation as much as 33 1-3 per cent. It compares favorably with the cheapest type of heating, yet it is considered tops.

An entire Force-Flo system can be concealed, radiation sizes having been reduced nearly 40 per cent. The heater units are also of smaller size, it being possible to enclose the burner, boiler and domestic water heater in one handsomely jacketed unit.

Among the advantages claimed for Force-Flo are its adaptability to any size house; its low installation and operations costs; the ideal combination it makes with air-conditioning units and the unlimited supply of domestic hot water the year around.

Force-Flo dealers are selected for knowledge, experience and dependability and their installations carry an unqualified guarantee. The J. A. Engel Heating company maintains a free estimating service for the benefit of home owners interested in protecting the health of their families, securing solid comfort and avoiding needless repair and maintenance costs.

Proper roofing material and its proper application is of utmost importance if the home owner is to have lasting satisfaction. Emil J. Belling, head of the Belling Roofing company, 513 N. Mason street, said today.

Bellings offers this service for the firm has been using Johns Mansville materials for both roofing and siding jobs for the last 25 years and has behind it a record of achievement and a long list of satisfied customers.

The firm believes in personal supervision for all jobs and Mr. Belling is well qualified to select the right type of roof material for any style home. Fine workmanship is a watchword of the Belling Roofing company which employs only workmen with long experience in roofing and siding work.

Hundreds of satisfied customers in Appleton and vicinity are proof that Belling roofing and siding jobs rank with the best. Belling is available at all times to quote prices on roofing and siding jobs and a telephone call will bring immediate attention.

Ryan, Long Firm Boasts Home Incinerator That Really Works

All homes—new or old—need a sanitary, convenient and inexpensive unit for garbage and rubbish disposal. The firm of Ryan and Long, 309 W. College avenue, handles just such a unit, the Cinator, made by the Renown Stove company of Owosso, Mich. It is a home incinerator that really works.

New engineering principles are used in its construction to completely consume all garbage, using only burnable rubbish for fuel. Operation of the incinerator is easy and elementary. The rubbish compartment is loaded by an easy access door with papers, sacks, wrappers, cartons and rags. Garbage, drained of excess moisture, is placed in a rear compartment. A match is touched to the rubbish and the job is done, the contents reduced to ash. There is no fuel cost and no damper or burners to operate.

Equipped with a patented V section down draft jet flue, the Cinator is absolutely odorless at all times. All odors are removed through the chimney top.

Easily Installed

The Cinator can be located conveniently near the basement stairs and connected to any basement chimney flue. It can be completely installed and ready for operation in less than an hour's time. The compact incinerator requires less than 7 cubic feet of basement space, being just 21 inches across and 32 inches high.

Having a capacity of 2 bushels, the Cinator can handle a sizeable accumulation. The ash residue is easily removed and requires little attention. Rich in phosphates, the residue has proved to be excellent fertilizer for flower beds.

Attractively designed the Cinator combustion chamber and interior flues are made of heavy gauge heat resisting boiler iron. The exterior case, with air space insulation, is of heavy steel and finished in wear resisting lacquer. The base and top are heavy cast iron sections.

Listed under the Re-examination service of Underwriters' Laboratories and conforming in construction to Class A of the regulations of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, the Cinator provides an intense flame which consumes all garbage with no costly gas fires, no burners to turn on and off and no dampers to adjust.

The Ryan and Long firm has made many Cinator installations and users report complete satisfaction. An important angle to remember is that the comparatively low first cost is the only cost.

Most Beautiful Coeds, Named By Student Vote, Form Court Of Honor at College Promenade

IN A BILLING gown of white net and wearing an orchid in her dark curls, Miss Ged Kuehnsted, Neenah, led the grand march at the Lawrence college prom Saturday night at Alexander gymnasium with Selden Spencer, Williams Bay, prom king. After they were seated on their thrones, George Hall, orchestra leader, announced their court of honor, the Lawrence college beauties chosen recently by a student vote sponsored by the Ariel college annual.

The beauties are Miss Betty White, Miss Mary Young and Miss Barbara Rounds, Appleton; Miss Cio Mary Bennisson, Minneapolis; Miss Barbara Boyce, Wauwatosa; Miss Jean Alus, Chicago; Miss Blanche Quincannon, Lake Geneva; Miss Yvonne Craig, Oak Park, Ill.;

Miss Harriette Peters, Milwaukee; Miss Lucile Leffingwell, Whitewater; and Miss Ruth Gray and Miss Dorothy Neunuebel, Chicago. Miss Neunuebel was unable to be present.

Several hundred persons attended the prom, one of the major social events at the college each spring. Dr. and Mrs. Lincoln Thiesmeyer and Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Van den Akker were chaperons.

Marine decorations were used for the party. The sides of the band stand were decorated with figures of King Neptune and a mermaid, and along the walls were sketches and paintings of fish, most of them more imaginary than true to life. The ceiling was covered with lighted balloons three feet long.

About 55 women attended the bridge-luncheon given by Appleton League of Women Voters Saturday afternoon at the Welling building on E. College avenue. A prize was given the winner at each table. Mrs. William Nemachek, finance director of the league, was general chairman of the party.

A public card party, open to both men and women, will be given at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at Odd Fellows hall under the auspices of Delta chapter, auxiliary to the Employees Mutual Benefit association. Bridge, schafkopf and dice will be played.

Ladies auxiliary to the Wisconsin Paid Firemen's association will sponsor a public card party at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Appleton Woman's club. Schafkopf, bridge and dice will be played. Mrs. Emma Conroy is chairman of the party.

Mrs. Otto Wickert, 809 N. Durkee street, entertained 10 tables of cards at a benefit party for George D. Eggleston Relief corps, auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, Friday afternoon at her home. A prize was given at each table.

Mrs. Anna Rubert was honored at a surprise party Sunday at her home on E. Wisconsin avenue in celebration of her seventy-sixth birthday anniversary. Those present were Mrs. Will Groth, Mrs. Johanna Schmiede, Mrs. Johanna Krueger, Mrs. Minnie Sigt, Mrs. Marie Vogel, Mrs. Gustaf Heiman and the Misses Theresa Timm and Margaret Engel, Appleton, and Mrs. Harry Frye and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Frye and daughter, Ann Louise, Hortonville.

The last of a series of card parties given by Christian Mothers' society of St. Theresa church will take place at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon at the parish hall. Bridge and schafkopf will be played and Mrs. Margaret Kronschabel and Mrs. Theodore Brunke will be in charge.

Mrs. Reuben Payne, 1125 W. Winnebago street, entertained Appleton Junior Hadassah at tea Sunday afternoon at her home. About 20 members were present and Miss Dorothy Goldin, Kaukauna, poured.

THESE WERE AMONG MOST BEAUTIFUL COEDS PRESENTED AT COLLEGE PROM
As the orchestra leader called their names, these Lawrence college beauties, chosen by a popular student election as the loveliest on the campus, marched across the ballroom floor at the annual Lawrence prom Saturday night at Alexander gymnasium to take their place around the thrones of the king and queen of the prom. In place of the sport clothes they wore when these pictures were taken Saturday afternoon, they wore glamorous formal gowns and long white gloves Saturday night.

Waupaca Bride-to-be Feted in Round of Pre-Nuptial Parties

MISS JANE JOHNSON, Waupaca, whose marriage to John Brauer will take place Saturday, is being honored at a round of pre-nuptial parties. Last Thursday evening Mrs. Gray Czesleba, Waupaca, gave a dinner for her and for another bride-to-be, Miss Marian Christofferson, Waupaca, whose engagement to Jerry Inness, Los Angeles, was announced recently. The other guests were Mrs. S. W. Johnson, Mrs. A. M. Christofferson and Miss Maxine Czesleba, Waupaca, and Mrs. Florence Ostrom, Waupaca, and daughter, Florence, Madison. Miss Ostrom won high honors at bridge, and Miss Johnson and Miss Christofferson each received a gift from the hostess.

Miss Johnson received many beautiful gifts at a pre-nuptial shower and luncheon given at the home of Mrs. R. J. Haveron, Waupaca, at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon. Guests were Mrs. A. M. Christofferson and daughter, Marion, Madison; James J. A. Peterson, Guy Schnall, Mrs. D. Luther, Roy Holly, Carroll Cristy, Frank Stratton, Rex Rosnow, Claude Penny, Waldemar Johnson, Henry Smith, Ira Christoph, S. W. Johnson, Paul Ostrom, F. R. Fisher and Alfred Johnson.

Mrs. Irving Hansen, Waupaca, aunt of Miss Johnson, entertained at a 1 o'clock luncheon and kitchen shower for her Saturday afternoon. Covers were laid for Mrs. Florence Ostrom and daughter, Florence, Madison, and Mesdames Paul Ostrom, John Hansen, David Shambau, John Comman, Gray Czesleba and daughter Maxine. S. W. Johnson and daughter Jane, and the Misses Marian Christofferson and Janet Lewis Bridge was played.

The guest of honor won high scores. Florence Ostrom second and Marian Christofferson, consolation.

A supper was given Sunday evening in honor of Miss Johnson and Mr. Brauer by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ostrom and Mr. and Mrs. John Comman. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Johnson and son Richard and Mr. and Mrs. David Shambau.

Mrs. Edwin Ahrens and Miss Viola Semrow entertained at a shower Sunday night at the former's home in the town of Ellington in honor of their niece, Miss Erma Semrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Semrow, route 3, Appleton, who will be married May 4 to Victor Buss. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Semrow and family, Mr. and Mrs. August Semrow and daughter Ethel, Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Jule Semrow, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Buss, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Semrow, Clarence Sievert, Junior Ahrens, Elmer Miller, Derald Ahrens, Miss Erma Semrow, Harley Semrow, Miss Mildred Semrow, Harland Jentz and Victor Buss.

Picards to Return This Weekend After New York City Trip

Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Pickard, 1010 E. Forest avenue, Neenah, are spending several days in New York City. They are expected home this weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gerlach, 702 N. Oneida street, are spending the week at Tryon, N. C., on business.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Marty and daughter, Ellen, 231 E. Winnebago street, Mrs. E. W. Shannon, 844 E. South street, and Elwood Bleick, 925 E. Commercial street, moved to Evanston, Ill., Sunday to attend the concert by the Northwestern University Symphony orchestra of which Edwin Shannon and Edmund Marty are members.

Three Appleton boys who have been in training at Ft. Sheridan, Robert Van Handel, Lester Weiland and Norman Baubs, all of them privates in Battery D, Coast Artillery, left today by truck for Nacogdoches, Texas, where they will take part in army maneuvers for at least two months.

Appleton Delegation Hears Dr. Maier at Lutheran Hour Rally
About 100 Appleton people were in the audience at the Lutheran hour rally Sunday at the Milwaukee auditorium which was addressed by Dr. Walter A. Maier, St. Louis Mo., noted radio preacher. Dr. Maier warned his listeners against the "Trojan horses" and "fifth columns" which would destroy the Christian church. Among these foes from without he mentioned communism, fascism, "atheistic education" and war itself, and the foes from within he said are modernism, doctrinal indifference, and "worldliness in the church." The Lutheran Symphony orchestra played several numbers and the Walther League a cappella chorus sang. The main arena of the auditorium was filled to capacity, 6,500 persons, and about 2,000 were accommodated in Kilbourn, Plankinton and Juncau halls.

Women Golfers Map Plans for 3 Tournaments

THREE individual 1-day invitational tournaments will be sponsored by the Northeastern Wisconsin Women's Golf association instead of the large 3-day tournament sponsored in other years. It was decided at the annual luncheon of the association Saturday at the Valley Inn, Neenah. The first of these tournaments is scheduled for June 26 and will be held at the Oneida Golf and Riding club, Green Bay. Another tournament will be held in July at the place and date not yet decided upon, and the third, in August.

Twenty-eight women representing eight clubs were present at the luncheon. Appleton delegates, representing Butte des Morts Golf club, were Mrs. Jack Burnham, Mrs. Don Morrissey, Mrs. George Theiss and Mrs. Dan Steinberg, Jr. Mrs. Leland Joannes, Green Bay, represented North Shore Golf club of Appleton.

A standing board that will assist the women of the individual clubs handle the tournaments was appointed. Members are Mrs. C. B. Rich representing the Oneida Golf and Riding club, Green Bay, president Mrs. Harry Gage representing the same club vice president, Mrs. Hugh Worthing, Pine Hills Country club, Sheboygan, secretary; and Mrs. W. Just, also Sheboygan, treasurer. Mrs. A. D. Blumenshine, Green Lake, member of Tusculum club, was named referee, chairman. The board will continue to function next year if the association goes back to the 3-day tournament.

Townsend club will have a special meeting at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at the courthouse.

Mrs. Elmer Rehman, 1504 W. Franklin street, will be hostess to General Review club Tuesday evening at her home. Mrs. Cy A. Howell will give the book review of "Kitty Foyle" by Christopher Morley.

Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Fiel were guests when Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Shepherd, E. College avenue, entertained.

Four More Wild Flowers are Added to State Protected List

BY CLARA HUSSONG
In 1939 the state legislature enacted a law (Section 343.42 Wisconsin Statutes) which gave protection to four more native plants in the state and also changed some-what the meaning of the term "protection." The old law protected the lotus, arbutus, all varieties of trillium and all orchids, including lady-slippers.

New wild flowers added to the protected list are: bittersweet, pitcher plant, Turk's cap and wood lilies. Under the old law, protection meant that no person could willfully root up, injure, destroy, remove or carry away any of the protected plants without the permission of the owner or person entitled to possession. None of these plants so gathered could be offered for sale, either as bouquets, roots, seeds, or bulbs.

No More Bouquets
The new law provides that protected plants may not be taken in any manner from public property or from the property of another "except for scientific purposes with the written permission of the conservation commission." This means that even if your best friend has a patch of arbutus on his property, you are not allowed to pick a bouquet.

Nearly everyone knows that the arbutus, ladyslippers and other orchids should not be picked and as the lotus does not grow wild in this part of the state, these three groups of plants suffer less at the hands of law-breakers than trilliums do. The showy, three-petaled lilies are so common along roadsides and in open woods during May that few dream they are protected or that they need protection.

Although the trillium plant is a perennial, it is said that the root dies if the blossom is picked below the leaves. As the three green leaves are situated just below the blossom, it is obvious that they are always picked along with the blossom. In the northern part of the state we have three species of trillium and in the southern part of the state are found two additional members of the family.

The large-flowered trillium is the large white "lily" with which we are all familiar. In old age the petals become somewhat crumpled and turn pink. Nodding trillium is a smaller species having a small nodding blossom growing in the axil of the three leaves. The snow trillium is a dwarf variety which blossoms sometimes as early as March. It is among our rarer plants and those found south of De Pere are said to be one of the largest stands in the state.

Owner Can Sell
In most woods in the extreme southern part of the state we find the prairie trillium or birthroot. Its three petals are dark purple long and narrowed into a claw at the base. Growing as far north as Columbia and Vernon counties is the painted trillium or wake-robin. Its petals are white with purplish markings in the heart of the flower.

According to my interpretation of the law, from now on, bittersweet, so popular for winter bouquets, cannot be picked or offered for sale except by the owner of the land on which it grew. This will, no doubt, result in nurseriesmen and florists growing it under cultivation in a greater amount than formerly.

The Turk's cap and wood lilies are two orange members of the lily family. The Turk's cap is the one with the nodding flower head, purple-dotted, recurved petals. It grows in meadowlands and occasionally in roadside ditches. The wood lily is the reddish variety with the erect flower head. It is one of the most beautiful flowers of the sandy oak and pine prairies.

Get Conservation Booklet
The bog-loving pitcher plant is best known to flower students because of its pitcher-shaped leaves which catch insects. The stiff, reflexed hair on the inner side of the leaf pitcher prevent the insects from escaping and in time they are drowned in the moisture that collects at the bottom of the "pitcher." The blossom of this plant is curious-ly-shaped, a cluster of purple petals encircling the broad slate-like stigma, which in turn serves as a roof over the ovaries and stamens. Wherever this plant occurs it is usually found in large colonies, but these aren't many spots where these colonies still remain.

Besides these plants which are given legal protection, the state conservation commission lists in its "Wisconsin Wild Flower" booklet a group of additional plants which are in danger of becoming extinct and which should not be picked. These flowers are: blood-root, bluebell, cardinal flower, dog-tooth violet, Dutchman's breeches, fringed gentian, pasque flower, shooting star, spring beauty, twin flower and columbine.

Lists of flowers which may be picked in moderation and those which may be picked freely are also included in this booklet which may be had by writing to the Conservation Commission at Madison.

What's New at the Library

What actually happened on the submarine Squalus from the moment it started on its training dive that May morning until the last survivor reached the surface in the large rescue bell and the huge steel "dogfish" herself returned in a sling of pontoons to the Portsmouth navy yard is told in "Blow all Ballast" by Nat A. Barrows. It is a living drama in which the men of the navy emerge as heroic personalities and their operations become a symbol of fortitude and courage.

The author is a well-known newspaperman who covered the episode from start to finish.

The home and social life of 35 North American birds is delved into and valuable lessons in protecting and fostering wild life are given in "Wild Bird Neighbors" by Alvin M. Peterson. Many photographs illustrate the book. Among the birds described are woodpeckers, flickers, blue jays, orioles, meadow larks, cardinals, cowbirds, wrens, crows, hawks, grosbeaks and others.

"Clara Schumann, A Romantic Biography" by John N. Burck is based on the life of the woman who in a concert career that lasted almost 70 years, became the champion and the living symbol of the whole romantic movement in music. To her the world owes the music of her husband, Robert Schumann, and her protegee, Johannes Brahms. Her biography is an historian and profound.

"Contemporary American Authors" by Fred B. Millet lists biographies of 219 authors and is a survey of a and a handbook on modern American literature.

In an attempt to dissect modern society, trace the processes which characterize it, the factors that have made it what it is, and set forth the major problems its leaders have to face, Edward Alsworth Ross has written "New-Age Sociology." It centers attention upon the type of society in which we are now living.

The Theory and Practice of Fencing" by Julio Martinez Castello, complete with illustrations showing the various positions in this sport, is one of the new books at the public library.

The conservation of our forests and the achievements and aims of the United States Forest Service are described in "Men and Trees" by Joseph Gaer. The books tells the value of trees to the nation, the causes of the depletion of the nation's forests and the government's program to stop the waste and restore the loss.

"Peruvian Pageant" by Blair Niles fuses a personal journey with historical research in Spanish America. The author visited the country while gathering material for a novel of sixteenth century Peru, and her husband did the illustrations which are photographs of the various places visited.

Personal observations about people, animals, and foreign lands and conduct are touched on in "Letters to Strongheart" by J. Allen Boone, written by the master of the trained German shepherd dog who became an overnight sensation in the movies.

Grated nutmeats sprinkled over the tops of fruit, vegetable or fish salads add crunchiness and a new flavor blend, difficult to describe, but indubitably pleasant in flavor.

Goodland Calls Garbage Men to Discuss Problem

Last Agitation for Free Collection Was Dropped in 1931

Licensed garbage collectors were scheduled to meet with Mayor John Goodland, Jr., and the deputy health officer, Claude N. Greisch, this afternoon in city hall.

The mayor called the meeting after 92 women petitioned the city council last week for free garbage collection and indicated that many more signatures could be had for the asking.

Mayor Goodland said he wants to find out why the women want free collection now after the present system has functioned so smoothly for the last 10 years.

Free garbage collection has not been a city problem since 1931 when Mayor Goodland's vote killed a move to build an incinerator on the city fairgrounds. The 1931 council argued the problem for about two months and the issue finally was dropped when the council voted six to six and Mayor Goodland voted against the measure.

Figures compiled at that time showed that an incinerator big enough to handle all the garbage collected in Appleton would cost the city about $90,000 and would use about five tons of coal per day.

Means New Trucks

The city would have to purchase garbage trucks and hire employees to man them. It was estimated at that time that free garbage collection would cost the city about $40,000 per year.

Hayden Kuttner, new sixth ward alderman, was a member of the council at that time and was chairman of the incinerator committee. He said plans were prepared but were dropped when the cost of the free collection was ascertained.

City officials remember one previous move to get free garbage collection in Appleton. It was under the commission form of government in about 1915. At that time the city purchased a horse-drawn garbage wagon and proposed to charge the cost of the collection against individuals participating. The matter was dropped after a short trial and no one knows what ever did become of the garbage wagon.

Selling 10 Pike to Game Warden Costs Hortonville Man $40

Selling game fish to a conservation warden cost Ed Fulcer, Hortonville, $40 and costs in municipal court Saturday morning. Fulcer first pleaded not guilty but returned to court and changed his plea to guilty.

Asked by Acting Municipal Judge Fred V. Heinemann whether he had speared a large number of game fish during the last couple weeks, Fulcer answered: "Well, yes and no." Judge Heinemann said he had no sympathy for such fishermen and assessed the heavy fine.

Game Warden Charles Schlumpf, Fond du Lac, said Fulcer had sold him 10 pike.

which caused the steady decline of Democratic power and influence in Wisconsin in recent years.

Usually the convention plan embodied the nomination of a man who would not otherwise be a candidate, it was asserted. The endorsement by the Democratic convention here in 1938 of Jerome P. Fox of Chilton, who ran poorly in the subsequent primary, was cited as an example. The party needs candidates who are eager to run, are willing to do so without encouragement or approval of a political organization, it was said.

No "Harmony" Talk

Talk of "harmony" efforts to weld the numerous factions of the warring Democratic party together for the 1940 campaign was totally absent here yesterday. There was not a single mention of Charles E. Broughton, official New Deal spokesman in Wisconsin and Democratic national committeeman who ler was unsuccessfully opposed for his seat by A. B. Chandler, then governor, now United States senator by appointment.

Although Chief Sizemore, a distant kinsman of Benton, said a patrolman Saturday "broke up" a fight between Jailer Combs and one of the four suspects, it was recalled Jailer Combs was indicted for murder in the pre-primary gun battle, Aug. 4, 1938, in which Leo Combs, no relation, was killed; his brother, Louis, Chandler's county chairman, and Sheriff Walter Deaton were wounded.

The charge against Jailer Combs, Barkley's county chairman, later was dismissed.

Last February, Louis Combs was killed and Fred Deaton, one-armed son of Sheriff Deaton, was wounded in a pistol duel. Fred Deaton was indicted for murder.

Several weeks later, Wilson Deaton, another son of Sheriff Deaton, was shot and killed, but Chief Sizemore expressed belief it had no connection with the "bad feeling" engendered by the pre-primary battle.

However, two cousins of Louis Combs' wife were arrested on murder charges in connection with Wilson Deaton's death.

Woman Pedestrian Hurt in Accident

Mrs. August Schmidt, Kaukauna, Suffers Bruises in Mishap

A pedestrian was injured as three traffic accidents were reported in Appleton over the weekend.

Mrs. August Schmidt, 522 Green street, was bruised severely in an accident involving a car driven by Alois Fischer, Jr. 16, on W. College avenue about 12:30 Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Schmidt was crossing the avenue on the west crosswalk of Walnut street and Fischer was going east when the accident occurred, according to police. Mrs. Schmidt is confined to St. Elizabeth hospital.

Cars driven by Richard Steffes, 24, 714 E. Franklin street, and Robert Menning, 27, Waverly road, collided about 8:35 Sunday morning. Steffes was traveling west on Washington street and Menning south on Occida street when the collision occurred, it was reported to police.

Cars driven by Harold Werner, 26, 207 N. Fair street and Ovilve Lambic, 336 E. Hancock street, were involved in a minor collision on College avenue about 9:40 Saturday night. Both cars were going west and the collision occurred when Werner stopped his car. It was damaged about the rear end, according to police.

Mercury Rises as Showers Wet City

Thermometer Over 60 Mark; Cooler and More Rain Tonight

Showers that brought some of the highest temperatures of the spring splashed on Appleton and vicinity today and were expected to continue tonight.

The thermometer stood at 63 above at 1 o'clock this afternoon, compared with yesterday's high of 65 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. It will be cooler in this area tonight and tomorrow. Tuesday's skies will be cloudy.

For the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning, the lowest mark in the city was 53, at 5 o'clock this morning, according to the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant. Rainfall during that period measured .04 of an inch.

San Antonio, Tex., with 88, and Yellowstone, with 81, turned in the high and low marks respectively in the nation yesterday.

ANNUAL MEETING

The Outagamie County Guernsey Testing association will hold its annual meeting at 7:30 tonight at the courthouse, according to County Agent J. F. Magnus. Officers will be elected and plans outlined for the year.

Four New Scouts are Admitted Into Troop 52 at Little Chute

Little Chute — Four tenderfoot scouts became members of Troop 52 in a public investiture ceremony at the village hall Friday evening. The new scouts are Nic Huisman, Gene Vanden Heuvel, William Van Bostel, and John Jansen, who were invested by Vernon Miron, assistant scoutmaster.

Commissioner Edward Bankert presented Earl Van Eberon of the Tiger patrol with his second class badge. Frank Demerath, assistant scoutmaster, made patrol leader and assistant patrol leader awards to the following: D. Hietpas, Vincent Brossers, Bob Nicodem, and Clarence Huisman, patrol leaders; William St. Aubin, Earl Van Eperon, Reginald Hietpas, Clarence Vanden Heuvel, assistants. Richard Kilsdonk received his troop scribe insignia.

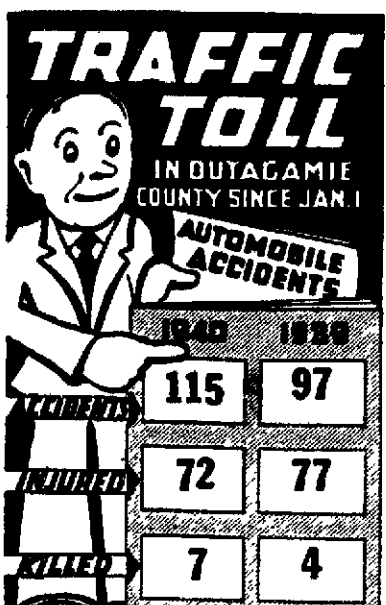

Greg Hanegraaf and Marvin Ebben became new members of the troop and of the Flying Arrow patrol, with the Deer patrol in charge of the ceremony. Commissioner Bankert talked on the effect European troubles have had on foreign scouting. Chairman L. N. Schommer commended the scouts on their paper drive and on the patrol leadership.

The Hawk patrol gave a first aid exhibition and the Flying Arrow patrol a skit, "The City Editor."

Reggie Hermen, Roman Vanden Heuvel, and Clarence Dercks provided accordion music. George Vander Loop, scoutmaster, was in charge of the program.

Rella Swamp Winner In Ping-Pong Title

Rella Swamp defeated Pearl Nofke Friday for the girls ping-pong championship at Appleton High school. The scores were 21-23, 21-11 and 21-7. In the semi-finals, Miss Swamp won over Dorothy Bailey and Miss Nofke defeated Geradine Lyman.

It Is Said..

There is one thing that is bothering Carl J. Becher, who will retire tomorrow as city clerk to go into the public accounting business. He won't have a chance to use the city's new check-signing machine which arrived today. Becher said that after 12 years of signing checks by hand and asking for a check-signing machine, the council had to wait until he leaves to buy it. He estimated he signed 250,000 checks for the city during his 12 years in office.

LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK

By Peggy O'More

ed at her books. May first. A few black figures marched down one side of the page, but so had the ed figures marched.

There had been a new pool installed. In it were established little liver-top minnows that would feed quickly and provide the living food the frogs demanded.

Toni dreamed of food; dreamed of a million mouths opened, waiting for her to fill them. Once she thought she was going to fall into those insatiable mouths and scream until Dotty, frightened, came in to awaken her.

She extended her territory, driving into the hot valleys, talking to buyers in sweltering kitchens, coming out nauseated by the smell of hot oil, to return to an equally hot tourist camp when she longed to go to an air-cooled hotel.

Air-cooled hotels made red marks.

By the end of May, the army of black figures had increased. One of the largest San Francisco hotels was buying regularly. Two Oakland cafes had installed frogs' legs on their menus for the first time. Frenchi's Frog Farm was beginning to ship to the interior. And Toni had lost ten pounds, her color and her zest for fun.

Driving back from Stockton one Friday night in late June, she wondered if the farm was worth the battle to win it.

The highway lay straight across the San Joaquin River valley. Lush green fields bordered it, but from them arose the steam-like heat. The sky arched in brass: the hills were purple smudges. When she reached them, they reared barren tan shoulders and cut off what breeze there had been.

"I wish I could pick the farm up and throw it at Bartell," she thought savagely. "Here I am, building it up, and in the fall I'll hand it over to him, all ready for a bumper crop next season."

Another long flat stretch, then she reached the Dublin pass and cool, salty air greeted her. Eagerly she breathed it in. By devious cross-cuts she reached the farm within an hour.

Never had it looked as beautiful. The big magnolia tree was a mass of cream-colored rosettes. The fence was heavy with fragrant Paul Scarlet roses. Cecile Brunners, delicate, soft pink petaled, draped the driveway arch.

And beyond the old house, the western sky was apricot, but smudged with purple clouds, fore-runner of a high, cool fog which would spread gossamer wings over the earth within an hour.

Pepper greeted her arrival joyously. Pickles bounded out to arch against her ankles. Abe shuffled up to put the car away; Pierre appeared, blue eyes warm with greeting, to take her bags; Dotty hurried out, drying her hands on her apron, to engulf her in motherly arms. And Toni, glancing towards the left, saw smoke coming from the Bartell chimney.

"Allen's home again," offered the housekeeper, catching the glance.

"I didn't know he'd been away," murmured Toni.

"I told you he was a farmer, land lover, or whatever you call a person who'd sell his soul for a plot of ground. He's been up in Sonoma County seeing his prune trees were staked, and down in Walnut Creek seeing how the walnuts were coming along."

"And," thought Toni, "next year he'll be hanging around here seeing how many salable frogs' leg there are jumping around the pens."

GRAIN OF KINDNESS

Kansas City —(AP)— There's a $10,000 trust fund in Kansas that assures "needy horses" of a free Christmas dinner of oats.

The fund was set up by the late Mrs. Emma W. Robinson of Olathe. Each horse is allowed one bushel.

In 1937, 250 bushels of oats were purchased but only 150 needy horses could be found. Since then the humane society has been able to dispose of about 200 bushels each Christmas.

Roach Says Tavernkeepers Need Assistance of Others In Controlling Liquor Sales

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Parents, teachers, local recreational leaders, and particularly municipal licensing authorities, have responsibilities equal to, if not greater, than those of the tavern proprietors themselves in the proper conduct of the alcohol industry, according to John W. Roach, chief of the beverage tax division of the state treasury.

Discussing the problem of liquor sales to minors, Roach insisted that the tavern keeper must not be depended upon exclusively for the moral supervision of the tavern industry.

Roach recently conducted several forums in up-state communities on the sale of liquor to minors, and how to eliminate the problem.

"In the present day," he declared,

"I do not think that the parents of our state or our nation are paying enough attention to the social welfare of their offspring. I think they are passing on the welfare of their children to public officials.

"They are giving their automobiles to too many minors, who in turn are able to drive into communities where they are not known."

"It is true that school authorities should look after the children also. But they cannot assume all the responsibility.

Parents Responsible

"Where does the youth go after his school party is over. Does he go directly home or where? Who should know that? The parents should know. So that is the place where the responsibility rests."

A particular responsibility lies with the local officials put in charge of issuing liquor sales licenses, according to Roach.

Too many of them, the state liquor chief asserted, "issue licenses to every Tom, Dick and Harry whether he be of a good moral character or not, whether he has violated the law in the past, or whether he be an habitual criminal. That is the fellow who should be eliminated from the tavern industry."

"For the sake of $50 or $65 townships adjacent to large cities will issue licenses. They are hungry for that money, for it goes into their local treasuries. And unfortunately communities of that kind do not provide much supervision over the taverns," Roach charged.

He added that the Tavern League of Wisconsin has done a great deal in policing their own industry and rectifying some of the abuses that creep into their business from time to time. In communities where tavernkeepers associations confer with the local licensing authorities about the problems of the tavern industry we have little or no trouble."

D.A.V. Convention Group Incorporated

Madison—Organization of the Disabled American Veterans State Convention corporation was announced here today with the registration of the articles of incorporation.

The group will take charge of arrangements for the state convention of the veterans in Antigo this summer, according to V. H. Freiburger, who with three others, formed the corporation.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10c and 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Be A Careful Driver

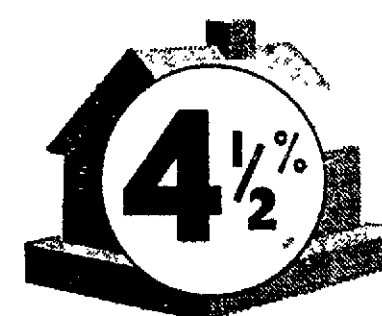

HOME BUILDING, for the average family, is usually a "once in a lifetime" event . . . Consequently the average prospective home builder has put a lot of thought, planning and effort into his conception of a home . . . So why take chances of having these plans go awry — Let us build your home.

We are thoroughly familiar with all the problems confronting home builders. Years of experience in building every type of home has perfected for us a thoroughly trained and efficient organization which we place at your disposal.

Our planning department, in charge of responsible men will plan your home, incorporating your ideas, your individuality into exact detailed plans — suggesting shortcuts here — effecting economies there — yet sacrificing no vital details.

We take all the responsibility from the time we submit these complete, accurate plans and specifications of exactly the type of home you want, until we turn the completed home over to you—exactly as you've always dreamed and pictured it.

IT'S EASY TO BUILD--- Figures Tell the Story- LOW COST FINANCING

INTEREST

The table below shows the low monthly payment required to pay the interest and repay the principal on typical size loans.

Amount of Loan	Monthly Payment Principal and Interest
1,000	5.56
2,000	11.12
3,000	16.68
4,000	22.24
5,000	27.80

The down payment required will vary with the value and location of your lot and the size and arrangement of your proposed home. In the average case we can arrange loans of approximately 85% of the Appraised value of your house and lot! In exceptional cases 90%. For example: if your lot is appraised of $500 and your proposed home at $4,000, we can arrange a loan for you of $3,800 and in some cases as high as $4,000.

If you do not already own a lot and are planning on buying one, we will be glad to give you our impartial advice as to its location rating without obligation.

CAUTION—To secure financing on the exceptional terms given above, it is necessary that your home be unusually well built and well planned. All "DURHAM BUILT" homes are guaranteed to comply with these strict requirements.

Falcons Lose in Non-League Game With Manitowoc

Menasha Team Outmits Shipbuilders but Drops 5 to 2 Decision

Menasha—The Menasha Falcons received a 5 to 3 defeat in their opening game of the season, a non-league event, at Manitowoc Sunday afternoon even though they outmanned the Shipbuilders 10 to 9. Connie Mack Berry, a member of the Oshkosh All-Star basketball team and a former Detroit Lion professional football player, started on the mound for the Falcons and was touched for all of the Manitowoc runs.

Faulty support cost Berry several runs for he kept the Manitowoc hits well scattered except in two innings. Dazzy Mayefski, veteran Falcon player, took the mound the last three innings and allowed only two hits. Berry is employed in Menasha and is counted on as a winner in the Valley league. The weather was far from favorable for pitching with a strong wind blowing across the field.

Manitowoc opened the scoring in the first inning when Schlie got a double on a pop-up which was misjudged and A. Kowalski came through with a single. A fast double play, S. Paulowski to E. Zelinski to Buzanowski, stopped a Manitowoc rally in the second inning.

Play is Ragged
The Ships made three hits count for three runs in the third when the Falcons threw the ball around. Gray singled and Schlie sacrificed. Kujawa singled and Gray scored when the throw home got away. A. Kowalski was hit by a pitched ball. Witczak struck out but the pitch got away from Kolasowski and after the Falcons threw the ball around some more another run counted. Streski singled the final run home.

The Falcons collected 10 hits in the game but it wasn't until the fourth inning that they bunched three of them for two runs. Unassisted double plays by the Manitowoc second baseman twice choked Falcon rallies. In the fourth F. Kolasowski doubled and H. Schutkowski singled for the first run. J. Kolasowski followed with a single for the second run.

In the fifth Zelinski, who performed with Seymour last year, was safe at first on an error. Stinski followed with a hit and Zelinski scored when F. Kolasowski collected his second hit of the day. However, Stanski over-ran second on the hit and was tagged out to cut the rally short.

The Falcons will play their first home game Sunday when they oppose the Appleton entry in the new Wisconsin State league at the Menasha park.

Zeppelin Raid on 11 English Coast Towns Is Described in War Stories of 25 Years Ago

BY VIOLA HELLERMANN

A German Zeppelin raid on 11 English coast towns which the British said did little damage and which the Germans declared did great damage, the apparent immunity of a break in Anglo-German relations and the destruction of another warship of the allied fleet in the Dardanelles made news in the first World War during the last part of April, 1915.

As reported in Appleton's two daily newspapers 25 years ago, the English version of the Zeppelin raid was that two men and a woman were slightly hurt, a building was destroyed by fire and three buildings were damaged in the Zeppelin's 35-minute cruise over 11 towns in the Tyne district. A story emanating from Berlin, however, stated that several officers of the British coast guard were killed or wounded, and bombs were dropped on the coast to destroy the ship yards.

Dispatches from Amsterdam April 16 said that Count Zeppelin had arrived at Cuxhaven, German flying base, to direct an aerial raid on London.

Rift Is Threatened
War fever was rife in Italy, where the populace believed a struggle between Italy and Austria could not possibly be averted. The Italian army and navy were ready to strike. Troops were centered at strategic points, and the navy was ready to protect coast cities from the Austrian fleet. Excitement was intense in official circles. Despite this, however, Prince Von Buelow, German ambassador to Italy, was still working hard to keep Italy out of the war.

"This is no time to suggest peace talk," said high French officials to Colonel House, President Wilson's emissary in Europe. "Stoppage of the war at this time would benefit only Germany. The allies have assumed the task of crushing German militarism and must refuse to be diverted."

Neither was Germany interested in peace talk. At the opening session of the Reichstag, German chancellor of the exchequer declared: "Our opponents, especially our most dangerous foe, had figured that stagnation of our gigantic foreign trade would cause a fatal deadlock to our whole economic organism, but our 70,000 people have learned to be self-reliant. The gross cost of the war to the allies is at least $900,000,000 per month, and contrast their financial plight—appealing to the world for funds—with that of Germany, whose war expenditures are met by her own resources have been mobilized so that little strain is felt."

That there was no food shortage in Germany was confirmed by T. St. John Gaffney, American consul in Munich, who denied any shortage in a letter addressed to and published in the New York World. "Fake Information"

"The receipt of numerous anxious letters at this consulate and by Americans in this colony indicates clearly that much false information is being disseminated at home," he said.

False information came from many fronts. Such sharply conflicting reports regarding the progress of the great Carpathian pass battle came from Petrograd and Berlin that newspapers carried hardly any information on it. British and French claims of victories on the western front were characterized by the German war office as "sheer inventions." The French charged that the Germans were bombarding the cathedral at Rheims again and again. Germans replied that the French had mounted cannon near the cathedral, making it necessary to answer the fire in that direction.

President Wilson, speaking at a luncheon in New York, asked that the United States remain a fair, impartial nation, imbued with the real spirit of neutrality and therefore better able to mediate the affairs of the world.

County's Offer to Advance $60,000 for Road Work Is Denied

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh — The state highway commission Friday denied an offer of the Winnebago county highway committee to advance $60,000 for the improvement of county trunk roads. The committee wanted to advance the money in lieu of expected funds from the state and expected the state to pay the money back when funds are available.

The state commission said that Winnebago county may expect a portion of a $2,000,000 fund to be distributed next week for state road purposes and informed the committee that Winnebago county will receive $75,000 from the state next week to maintain in installments in July, August, September and October. The committee was told that Winnebago county has a credit of $180,000 with the state department and that the county may expect release of a portion of the credit when funds are available.

Sir Malcolm Campbell, British Speed King, Is Given Divorce Decree

London—Sir Malcolm Campbell, for years speed king on land and water, was granted a divorce decree this today on the grounds of his wife's adultery with Sir Malcolm's former business associate, the Hon. Brian Edmund Lewis.

A decree nisi is a conditional decree which may be made absolute after the expiration of a certain period—not less than six months—unless cause to the contrary is shown.

A few minutes before the judgment was given, Lady Campbell, who had answered Sir Malcolm's suit with a divorce petition of her own, charged that he had condoned her adultery with Lewis.

Sir Malcolm, who married Lady Campbell in 1920, earlier in the day had dropped his case against one of two co-respondents he had named in the divorce suit.

Lewis was ordered to pay the costs of the suit, not including those against the other co-respondent nor against a woman cited as a co-spondent by Lady Campbell. The woman was dismissed from the case last week when the judge, Justice Hobson, ordered the hearing to proceed despite Lady Campbell's assertion that she had suffered a nervous breakdown.

Justice Hobson said that perhaps the greatest difficulty in the case was that Sir Malcolm had to ask for discretion, since he admittedly had committed adultery. From the witness stand the former speed king, wearing a bedemailed army uniform, admitted committing adultery with four different women.

National Politics are Like 'Queenie,' a Circus Elephant

BY W. B. RAGSDALE

Washington — (AP) — The national politics of 1940 are as hard to understand and as uncertain of temperament as "Queenie."

"Queenie" was a circus elephant. Her trainers tried to teach her to stand on her head.

Six thousand times they put her front legs in the right spot, hitched a team of mules to her rear, gave her the signals that are supposed to make elephants stand on their head, and had the team haul "Queenie" up on her ears.

But "Queenie" couldn't seem to learn. Young elephants came in, were hauled up a few times, got the knack of the trick and went into the ring. "Queenie" went on parading and being hauled up on her ears and not learning the trick.

One night the circus train was wrecked, and the animals spilled out in the countryside. "Queenie" cut through a cornfield with a dozen trainers after her, disappeared in the dark. When they found her, she was surrounded by lush corn—standing on her head.

One of these days, the Washington political experts are likely to find the political situation standing on its head in the middle of a corn field.

Notice is hereby given that at a term of said court to be held on Tuesday, the 21st day of May, 1940, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the Court House in the City of Appleton, in said County, there will be heard and considered: The application of Joe Coffey, administrator of the estate of Floyd Coffey, deceased, late of the Town of Freedom, in said County, for the examination and allowance of his final account, which account is now on file in said court, and for the allowance of debts or claims paid in good faith without filing or allowance as required by law, and for the assignment of the residue of the estate of said deceased to such persons as are by law entitled thereto; and for the determination and adjudication of the inheritance tax, if any,

Alice Stanley of New London Wins Forensic Honors

Takes First in Extemporaneous Reading at State Contest

New London—Alice Stanley senior, won highest forensic honors for New London High school by earning a first rating in the state contest at Madison Saturday. Miss Stanley was one of 20 state contestants in extemporaneous reading and all were required to read a different selection from the book, "Drums Along the Mohawk." With winners in the four other forensic divisions, she broadcast her selection over radio station WHA at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Four New London students placed in the conference contest at Shawano Saturday afternoon. Jean Ullerich won first in Class A serious declamatory and Robert Paten received first in Class B oratory. Maurice Levine placed second in Class A humorous declamatory and James Christensen rated third in Class B extemporaneous speaking. Ten schools of the Northeastern Wisconsin conference took part.

John Pieper of New London Dies

Was Pioneer Resident of City; Funeral Will be Held Wednesday

New London—John Pieper, 73, 302 E. Quincy street, died at his home at 7:30 Sunday morning of heart's disease. He had been in failing health the last two years. Born July 1, 1867, in Germany, Mr. Pieper came to New London with his parents as an infant and lived there all his life. He was employed as a woodworker until three years ago. He was a charter member of the New London branch of the Aid Association for Lutherans. Survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Hugo Bergman, New London; five sons, Elmer, Harold and Franklin, New London; Melvin, Shawano; and Clarence, Milwaukee; one sister, Mrs. Robert Schindler, Oshkosh; and 13 grandchildren. Funeral services will be held at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon at the residence and 2 o'clock at the Emanuel Lutheran church with the Rev. W. E. Pankow in charge. Burial will be in Floral Hill cemetery. The body will be at the residence from this evening until the hour of services.

HATTEN YARD BECOMES BARREN AREA

New London—Five years ago, when the picture at the top was taken, the Hatten Lumber company was at peak operations and about fifteen million feet of lumber were stacked high in the yards. Today, only a few stacks remain and the yards look as shown in the lower photo. The mill is in the background with the city hall looming at right. Remaining lumber is being disposed of rapidly but officers of the company announced last week that liquidation will not be completed by May 1 as planned and retailing will continue until May 15. However, the planing mill, shown in operation in the recent picture, will be closed this week on May 1. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Boating Enthusiasts Prepare For New Season on Wolf River

New London—With one eye on the waters of the Wolf, New London Boat club members worked at the clubhouse site yesterday to complete seasonal repairs to their craft to get them ready for launching as soon as possible.

Only two boats have taken to the water so far, a new 25-foot open launch, the Ragna S, purchased by Warren Shoemaker, and Fred Menger's 17-foot runabout, "Billy Fritz." Harry Macklin has purchased Lex Frank's 22-foot canopy launch, the "Magnet," and is completing repairs to the keel. He will rename the boat the "Carla Ann" after his daughter. Ed Kopitzke has nearly completed the installation of a new bottom in his 20-foot "Arrow" cabin cruiser and expects to launch next week.

The 32-foot "Aunt Teak" of Warren Shoemaker the largest craft at New London, is undergoing extensive overhauling and is not expected to hit the water until June 1. Arnold Kopitzke's 20-foot runabout, the "Kopitz," awaits launching. Other large inboards which are street, will entertain group No. 2 of the Ladies Aid society of the First Presbyterian church at her home Monday evening. Mrs. Ben Teichel is chairman of the group.

Mrs. Carl Krieser will entertain the Ladies Aid society of the First Presbyterian church, at her home Wednesday evening.

The third of a series of Citizenship meetings will be held at the high school at 7 o'clock Monday evening. The series will be concluded Monday evening, May 6. A meeting of the Homemakers club will be held at the high school at 7:30 Tuesday evening.

Hold Their Own
Pennsylvania Kegler Hits
715 for 6th Place
Singles Tie

DETROIT—The theory that late comers enjoy an advantage in American Bowling congress tournaments isn't working out so well in the present revival of the pin classic.

Keglers scheduled late in the tournament were supposed to profit from the "softening" of new alleys by the early entrants. With only eight sessions remaining of the 62-day tournament, the 40 alleys in the state fair coliseum have taken a terrific pounding, yet scores rolled three and four weeks ago still remain among the first 10 in the five-man event. Only five of the 160 teams which bowled during the weekend were able to top the 2,800 mark.

Frank Pollock, 28-year-old bank teller of Bradock, Pa., created the only change among the leaders in Sunday's rolling. He fired a 715 for a sixth place tie in the singles.

The leaders, first three in each event, follow:

Five-Man Event
Monarch, Chicago, 3,047
Rosedale Club, Kansas City, 3,003
Falcato's Schlitz, New York, 2,993

Doubles

HERE seems to be an idea held by many fishermen that about the only manner in which you can take a muskellunge is with a spoonhook of any one of a number of varieties. True, numbers of the grey warrior tribe fall to the blandishments of the gleaming blade but this does not mean that this is the only seductive lure to make use of.

There are also underwater plugs, not to mention the top-water type that we have found unusually attractive in this manner of fishing. In fact I go so far as to state that any fisherman within the range of the musky, all the way from New York and Pennsylvania, to Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee can through to the north, will do well to take a trip, and, during the next summer, try out that top-water plug. You are likely to get the surprise of your life because you may take one of these spectacular fish off of his guard. Muskellunge may be pretty familiar with the spoon lure, but they will not be prepared to meet up with the surface performer.

The muskellunge, quite opposed to general theory, is not a deep-water fish in spite of his large size. Most of his life is spent in water a few feet to fifteen or twenty feet in depth. It takes much of its food off of the water surface. Muskrats, mink, coot, ducks and various other animals and birds are picked up for food. It is only logical, therefore, that the typical surface lure, especially the type that boils up the water, would be the one that would prove killing. In our own experience we have taken upwards of 50 splendid muskies on top-water plugs, and have, of course, lost many. Our largest musky weighed 40 pounds. I mention this merely to call attention to the fact that large muskies as well as small ones of 20 pounds likewise maul up on surface lures.

Typical musky lures in this top-water or surface class are the musky-size revolving-head lure, the jitterbug, the flapjail, the injured minnow type and the so-called scud-oreno. There are others of course, many of them, but the above will give you a good indication of what is meant by top-water musky plugs. Generally these are now to be had in a large size, which, of course, are best fitted for this type of heavy fishing.

The value of the commoting or water-disturbing plug is that it boils up the water, making the fish believe it is some sort of animal of aquatic or terrestrial origin, having a hard time of it, probably injured. Without doubt (and this we have proved to our entire satisfaction) is the best time for using these surface lures on muskies is around about twilight, and somewhat into the deepening dusk. If, then, you have locations you know the muskies hang out in, here is where that surface-disturbing plug will prove deadly in a big way. In operating this lure, do not reel it straight in. Rather work and jiggle it on the surface, and let it remain silent for a few minutes, then work it again.

Cast the lure up alongside of the pads of in indentations, around logs and down trees in the water, up in little coves. We have taken muskies well into the dusk, when, in fact, it was difficult to see where the lure dropped. Good places to work in the dusk are on low flats or reefs, as the muskies come up on these to feed in the evening.

Almost invariably when a musky is hooked on a surface lure he will come out of water. There will be, at first, a large percentage of losses until you get into the knack of setting the hook. But it is great sport, and is the most exciting of all in that you have a chance of seeing the fish go out of water his full length!

LITTLE CHUTE—Puritan leaders walloped last week's leaders in the local Women's League for three games and forced them into a tie with Nitingales for first place. The Puritans are only one game behind the co-leaders, and final matches this week will settle the championship.

High series honors went to Anita Helf with a 535 triple while Minnie Lussert knegled a big 227 singleton.

Main Street Restaurant crashed an 852 team game with Puritans high in team series with 2,444.

In the Puritan-Verkuilen match, Alma Kilsdonk walloped a 596 triple and Min Verkuilen hit a 501 game. Stein Verhagen paced the losers with a 471 series and Kate Weyenberg showed a 175 game.

Looks Meats grabbed the odd game from Min and Bill's tavern with Maybelle Schommer high for the winners with a 511 triple and a 188 game. Marion Jansen led the losers with a 472 series and a 176 game.

Nitingales won the odd game from Main Street Restaurant, led by Anita Helf with high series of 535 and a game of 183. Min Lussert's 227 game was high for the losers and she also totaled 509 for series honors.

Cloe Hammen led Ideal Beauty Shop with a 516 triple while Peg Steir had high game of 198, and a 498 series. Josie Haupt led the losers with a 498 total and a 202 game.

The Joop will finish this week and wind up the season with a banquet Thursday evening.

Milwaukee Teachers Win Initial Relays

Milwaukee (7)—By winning 11 of 12 events, Milwaukee Teachers college athletes romped away with the first annual Milwaukee relays Saturday, scoring 65 points.

Oshkosh Teachers college counted 36 points; La Crosse Teachers 224 and Whitewater Teachers 21.

Champ Seibold of Oshkosh won both the shot put and discus, and Richlen of Oshkosh copped the 120-yard high hurdles.

reer at West De Pere high school in 1928 while still with the Packers. He went to Green Bay West in 1933 and to Monmouth as athletic director and coach, in 1938.

As a small nucleus around which to build, Cahoon will have four players either bought or obtained in trades last week. They are Regis Monahan, former Ohio State all-American, a guard; Joe Zimmerman, former Centenary guard who was named on the Jewish all-American team last fall; Obbie Novakofski, star Lawrence halfback, who had a tryout with the Packers last season and wound up with Kenosha, and Carl Buck, former Carroll college star, a halfback, also with Kenosha last fall.

Novakofski and Buck were bought outright from Kenosha.

THE NEBBS

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

DEEP FIORDS
From time to time in my travels I have found a place of extreme beauty. Among these beauty spots are peaks of the Rocky mountains, Niagara Falls, Grand Canyon, Lake Tahoe, Mount Hood, forests of redwood trees, the Lakes of Killarney, the Alps of Switzerland, and the fiords of Norway.

Scene in one of Norway's fiords.

It would be hard to say which of these is most beautiful, but two places have come to me most like fairyland. One was a deep, green forest in Ireland, with ancient trees whose gnarled limbs were loaded with moss. While in this forest I thought, "No wonder the Irish have so many stories about fairies!"

The other "fairyland" was a fiord in Norway. As a small steamer took me mile after mile up the fiord, I gazed at the scenes which changed one into another, and they seemed too wonderful to be true. Steep mountains rose from either side. The waterway was broad in one part, narrow in another, then broad again.

A fiord is an old river valley with a bed which is lower than sea level. Salt water comes in from the sea, and makes the fiord water salty.

A fiord is called an "inlet of the sea." It is likely to make a fairly good harbor for ocean-going vessels.

When Hitler's forces attacked Norway early this month, several large fiords were entered by German warships. This meant control of seaports, for the time at least. On the other hand, it brought on the danger of being "bottled up" and destroyed. It may be easy to get into a fiord, but hard to get out---if a war fleet comes to block the way.

Many fiords of Norway are very deep. One section of the Hardanger fiord is from 900 to 1,000 feet deep. A depth of 2,820 feet has been reported at one place in the Sogne fiord, and of 4,000 feet in another part!

Although a fiord may be deep, during much of its course, the water is likely to be shallow where it opens to the ocean. At this point it may have a depth of only 50 or 100 feet.

The fiords of Norway cut far into the country---Hardanger fiord is 68 miles long. Sogne fiord stretches inland to the Jostedal, 106 miles from the ocean.

EDNA M. FERGUSON

This Year's Cooking School
LECTURER

A brilliant record of schooling and experience is behind Edna M. Ferguson, national famous lecturer on home-making and especially on the finer aspects of cookery.

A graduate of the MacDonald Institute of Guelph, Ontario, with post-graduate work at Columbia University, New York City, Miss Ferguson rounded out her training by attending the Inndor School of Cooking, also in New York.

For twelve years after graduating, Miss Ferguson headed the Home Economics Department of the Macdonald Institute, the Technical High School of Kitchener, Ontario and the Peterborough Normal School of Ontario.

Then, wishing to broaden her fields of activity, she managed tea rooms in New York, large cafeterias and directed the administrative and dietetic interests of commissariat departments in hospitals for four years.

Pursuant to this same interest, she entered the Cooking School field. Her long and varied experience, founded on her excellent training and coupled with an easy, pleasant platform manner, makes her one of the favorite lecturers on these subjects in the country today.

Hospitality will be the keynote of the Post-Crescent's 19th Annual Cooking School, which has been carefully planned to fit the needs of homemakers in this community. Presiding over the modern kitchen will be Miss Edna M. Ferguson, nationally famous lecturer, who will demonstrate many branches of practical homemaking. Appetizing recipes, printed on the daily programs, will be followed in each step of preparation, while time and labor-saving equipment is watched in actual use. Home problems will be discussed helpfully and informally at the entertaining gatherings, where everyone will be welcome. Tom Temple's orchestra, Wisconsin's finest, will be on hand, half-hour organ programs are planned, and new stage settings have been arranged. Plan now to attend every session. Meanwhile, watch for subsequent announcements of the finest cooking school in 19 years of cooking school history in Appleton.

New Philosophy Is Incorporated In Valid Statute

Statement by Judge Otis
Explains Why Courts
Uphold Labor Board

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—People who say they can't understand the Walter-Logan bill which passed the house of representatives by a 3 to 1 vote and is now pending in the senate, and people who say they don't know what is meant when citizens insist on a fair hearing before administrative boards, commissions and agencies may have some light thrown on the subject by reading a rather remarkable opinion which has just emanated from a United States court for the western district of Missouri.

Strangely enough the opinion which was written by Judge Merrill E. Otis is a dissent which upholds Secretary Wallace's ruling and declares that the wording of the statute in question is such that the courts now must affirm rulings even though they know there is a denial of justice in them.

What Judge Otis says is an explanation incidentally of why so many courts are upholding the National Labor Relations board these days. According to Judge Otis, the courts really have no alternative. The language of the law is so binding that it is what the commissions and boards and bureaus declare to be a fact that the courts must uphold. Judge Otis who has been on the bench since 1925 twits his two colleagues who overruled Secretary Wallace's position recently in the F. O. Moran sheep commission case which was turned back by the supreme court of the United States to the district court for re-trial. Says Judge Otis:

"My colleagues, I think, have not been able to accept a certain new philosophy—nor do I accept it, although I recognize it, and I bow to it when congress incorporates it into a valid statute—a philosophy that exalts the administrative agency and correspondingly lessens the powers of courts of justice. Congress has said that, on judicial review, findings of fact made by such an agency, if supported by evidence, shall be conclusive. And so the judicial review becomes largely without significance. It looks not to substance, but to form.

"The overwhelming weight of evidence—the testimony of 20 witnesses—may support one finding, a minimum of substantial evidence. The testimony of a single witness may support the opposite finding. If the administrative agency, actuated by pique or prejudice or class interest or a consideration of the number of votes to be gained by the party finds against the weight of evidence, the reviewing court is helpless.

"And if, under compulsion of the law, the reviewing court affirms the agency, it is proclaimed to the world that the United States district court or the circuit court of appeals on the supreme court of the United States has endorsed and approved what the agency has done, it is not unnatural that judges should look with disfavor on such a consequence.

"How superficial it is to compare such an arbitrary, possibly even dictatorial, fact-finding power with the fact-finding power of a jury. The jury is constantly under the supervising control of the judge. The judge excludes evidence that is irrelevant, immaterial or otherwise incompetent. He reviews and sums up the case. He inspires the jury at the hour of its final functioning with the high ideals of justice and truth. And he may set aside whatever verdict the jury has returned. "Full Hearing"

"I think my colleagues have not been able to accept the new philosophy seen in another aspect. To them the 'full hearing' which the law requires an administrative agency to give the parties means a hearing comparable in all important details to the historic judicial hearing, a hearing in the solemn and dignified atmosphere of a court room, where the testimony received under the time-tried rules of evidence, is presented orally to a trained judge, to an impartial judge (the parties may have him removed for bias and prejudice if he is deemed not impartial), to a judge who hears the arguments of opposing counsel and thereafter decides the issue.

"It is a far cry, my colleagues think (and so think I) from that kind of hearing to such a hearing as that contemplated by, for example, the Packers and Stockyards act, where the testimony is taken by an examiner (who may also be in fact active counsel for one of the contending parties) where the deciding power is vested in an official who never sees a witness, where the ultimate authority cannot practically even read the evidence (although he may be compelled to say that he has done so), where there is no satisfactory way under heaven to dislodge a biased and prejudiced agency and secure another, and where the decision of the agency, so functioning, is to every issue of fact, if supported by any evidence (however deficient of the weight of the evidence), is made as conclusive as the command of a despot. My colleagues find it difficult to see 'due process of law' in such a medley of ritual and form and shadow. I honor and respect them for their steadfastness."

The law under which the case was decided was passed by a Republican congress. It is like many another statute passed in the days when scant attention was given to the growing economic complexities of governmental regulation. That's why the Walter-Logan bill seeks to revise the procedure for all the major government commissions and boards which do not already have fair system of procedure to protect the citizen against despotic powers and arbitrary rulings. That's why, too, the house is about to consider the giving of a fair hearing to employer and employee in connection with the pending Smith bill to amend the procedure under the Wagner Labor Relations act.

The New Deal bureaucrats are fighting hard to prevent passage of these amendments and revisions. This is understandable. They want no curb or check on their powers at all. The bureaus and commissions and boards, however, must bow to the will of congress which is the only elected body, really intended by the constitution to make the laws governing the exercise by the citizen of his rights. If congress abdicates to the bureaucrats and such measures as the Walter-Logan bill are ultimately vetoed by the president, the people will have a real issue this coming campaign—fair play and a fair deal for all citizens. This issue touches the heart of the democratic process which has heretofore been extolled as a protection of the minority against the excesses of intolerant majorities.

'Pegler Tells About Scalise's Cuban Trip With Little Aug

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—William Green, the president of the American Federation of Labor, has expressed a belief that George Scalise, the international president of the building service employees' union, has led an upright life and has rehabilitated himself by honest toil since his conviction in 1913 on a charge of forcing a young woman into prostitution. Being so convinced, apparently without investigating his distinguished colleague's way of life since 1917, when Scalise emerged from Atlanta, Mr. Green a few months ago endorsed Scalise's petition for a full pardon from President Roosevelt and restoration of certain rights of citizenship. The petition has since been disallowed, and Mr. Scalise now finds himself under multiple indictments obtained by Thomas E. Dewey, charging that he used his union as a blackjack with which to extort money from employers.

For Mr. Green's information and the enlightenment of the toilers who pay Scalise $20,000 a year and expenses without limit out of an annual union kitty of about $400,000 it is here reported that on Feb. 17, 1939, Mr. Scalise flew to Havana for a brief but luxurious sojourn amid the pleasures of that Caribbean capital in company with his old friend Little Augie Carfano, commonly known to the police, the underworld and the turf as Little Aug.

A third member of the company of honest Yankee tourists was Mr. Tom Burke of Chicago, third vice president of the international union or racket operated by authority of the naive Mr. Green under a charter from the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Burke's rise to his distinguished position in the racket, fourth in line behind a pander, followed the assassination in Chicago of the real pioneer in this field of labor with a capital L, Mr. Louie (Two-gun) Alterie, who was known to his colleagues as the man in the iron shirt. Mr. Alterie, a member of the old Capone mob, was the first Chicago criminal of the old school to patronize a boiler-maker for his underwear.

His associates, knowing of this foible, took pains to shoot him in the neck and face when they opened fire from a love nest, or ambulance, across the street from the apartment in which he lived when his official duties in the racket pulled him away from his dude ranch in Colorado. He was racketeering in the theatrical janitors' union.

Promotions in Chicago Are Sometimes Abrupt

Progress in the labor movement in Chicago often is promoted in this way. Another conspicuous case was that of the stage hands and movie operators' union, or racket, also of the A. F. of L., which gave to the cause of labor with a capital L, Mr. Willie Bioff, like Scalise, a pander, soon after the assassination of the pioneer hoodlum, Tommy Maloy.

Little Augie Carfano, or Pisano, has been ambidextrous in his labor activities. That is to say, he has racketeered both for and against the unions, although it is not meant to suggest that he ever racketeered for the workers. He broke strike for hire as a terrorist in Brooklyn, and he also terrorized toilers into a local racket union, a subsidiary of the teamster.

He also has been gambling in liquor and, of course, is a noted figure in the crowds at the hoodlums' horseyard in Miami, formerly known as Tropical park, and at Saratoga. In fact, it was at Saratoga that he was picked up in one of the nine arrests which are cited in his police record, a document which includes three gun charges, one of felonious assault and one of being a fugitive in a murder case.

Record Shows Only That The Case Was Appealed

He was convicted on a gun charge in Miami in 1933, but the winter home of the criminal scum was no more severe than Saratoga, which is by way of being the summer home of the criminal scum, or Brooklyn, Manhattan, Mount Vernon or Yonkers. The conviction and a fine of $100 were appealed, and Scalise's comrade, Little Aug, was released.

The record says no more about it. Mr. Scalise, Mr. Burke and Little Aug flew to Havana from Miami on the 17th of February, 1939, and flew back on the 20th, laden with little knickknacks for their dear ones after a happy spell of relaxation at the Hotel Nacional, the most expensive and luxurious on the island, and at the races and in little points of interest around town.

The same charwomen, bellhops, window washers and chambermaids whose miles, contributed out of their small wages, recently enabled Mr. Scalise to buy a mansion on Lake Mamanasco at Ridgely, Conn., may rejoice to learn that their worthy president thus rehabilitated himself in the company of their third vice president and Little Aug, the anti-labor racketeer.

Mayor Dies Shortly After Daughter Is Married at Bedside

Monroe, Mich.—Dr. Arthur W. Karch, mayor of Monroe, died today in Monroe hospital a few hours after his daughter was married at his bedside.

The 56-year-old physician failed to rally from an operation a week ago. Recognizing his critical condition he urged his daughter, Marian, to proceed with wedding plans. Last night in the hospital she was married to John McCallister of Monroe.

Dr. Karch had been head of the hospital since 1920.

He was appointed mayor of Monroe a year ago to succeed Daniel A. Knaggs, who was appointed to the state board of labor and industry. Last fall at the regular city election he was voted a full term.

A graduate of the University of Illinois, Dr. Karch's early practice was in Norway, Mich.

The first printed book in the English language was turned out by William Caxton in 1477. It was called "Dictes and Sayengis of the Philosophers."
